

AUTO WRECKED AND FOUR PEOPLE ARE SERIOUSLY HURT

SACRAMENTO, August 8.—In an automobile accident caused by fast driving on the J street road opposite the Country Club early this morning, two men and two women were hurt, none fatally. The injured are: Frank Kritser, E. A. Chapman, Miss Mabel Van Slyk and Miss Olivia Matthews. The accident followed the attempt of Kritser, who was inexperienced and at the wheel, to turn on a bridge that spans a slight depression on the J street road, not far from the Country Club at a high rate of speed. The auto was overturned.

TRIES TO KILL STRANGER HE SURPRISES AT NIGHT IN HIS HOME

CAUSES OF THE ROW IN THE BERKELEY LEAGUE

Resentment Provoked by the Tactics of the Oakland Bosses of the Reform Faction.

The plot thickens in the Berkeley situation. It develops that the opposition in the Lincoln-Roosevelt League to the resolution endorsing the three sitting judges for renomination did not come alone from the friends of Judge Edgar. Objection to having Edgar summarily squelched as a candidate in his home bailiwick was a factor of course, but the deepest resentment was aroused by the attempt to trade the East Berkeley League off by the Oakland Junta, having their headquarters in the Fifteenth district, Oakland, for delegates in Eden township. That trade, if consummated, would have left all the Berkeley candidates for Judge Supervisor and State Senator out in the cold, and even made it impossible for the Assembly nomination to go to North Oakland. There is some feeling against Judge Waste for tacitly consenting to an arrangement which gave Oakland both the supervisors, the Senator, and left Berkeley nothing save his own nomination.

ANGER AROUSED.

There was, and is, anger that the Berkeley Club should have asked to ratify a deal made by an Oakland man by which every Berkeley candidate was sacrificed to promote the ends of the Oakland Junta of the league, which has undertaken to run the machine.

It was not the proposal to endorse the judges that stirred resentment and opposition, but the proposal to ratify the deal on which the endorsement was predicated. In this deal the East Berkeley leaguers had no part. They were not even consulted, and all their candidates were killed off in a lump without warning or compensation. Moreover, the deal made it possible for Billy Schmidt of West Berkeley to combine with the ten votes of North Oakland and cut East Berkeley out of the Assembly nomination, which the University section regards as its own pet prerogative.

ATTEMPT DENOUNCED.

Not a few of the East Berkeley leaguers denounce the attempt to trade them off without their knowledge and consent as the rawest of machine politics.

"Just look at the result of the combination those fellows in Oakland fixed up for us," said one indignant leaguer to a TRIBUNE man. "Rowe would be given the nomination for supervisor in one district and Mullins in the other. Both are Oakland men. Stetson would get the Senatorial nomination, and we would be left to square with Schmidt and North Oakland for control of the Assembly district. We might come out without a single thing. Judge Waste excepted. I am not opposed to re-nominating the three judges, but I don't think it is fair to deny Judge Edgar the chance of a nomination if there are to be any changes in the personnel of the Superior Bench. But what do we gain by giving Oakland both the supervisors? Schmidt might get a supervisorial nomination in the shuffle. It is true, but Schmidt comes from West Berkeley and doesn't belong to the league. If he should get the nomination it would have to be by a trade which would give North Oakland the Assembly nomination."

ON SENATORIAL FIGHT.

"So far as the Senatorial fight is concerned, the only objection I have against Lukens is that he is the candidate of the old organization machine. But Stetson is pledged to Perkins, and is put up by men who have organized a machine of their own and are trying to use the Lincoln-Roosevelt League for purposes directly opposite to the end it was organized to serve.

"Aside from the question of political affiliation, we have no complaint to make against Lukens. He is an alumnus of the University and has always worked for its interests in the Legislature. He did as a service when he had Berkely set off in a separate assembly district. Besides, he has ability and experience. If we are to have a machine senator I prefer the one we've got, one who is at least efficient and loyal to the University."

DON'T LIKE HIS WAY.

"Stetson is a bright fellow, and I think means to do right, but I don't like the way his fight is being handled nor some of the men who are handling it. Too many railroad lawyers are booting his canvas, and resorting to the old machine methods which have so disgusted the public to aid him in getting the nomination. We want a recovery."

ROUSING RALLY TO BE HELD TONIGHT

There will be a big rally in the interest of United States Senator Perkins, Congressman Knowland and State Senator Lukens in the old Republican club building at Seventeenth street and San Pablo avenue this evening. All preparations indicate an enthusiastic meeting.

At Hayward tonight the Taft-Sherman Club will hold a rousing meeting in Native Sons' Hall. Among the speakers will be Congressman Knowland, District Attorney Everett J. Brown and Assemblyman Strowbridge.

BIG TREES ESCAPE FIRE THIRD WOMAN IN CASE OF MAN WITH TWO HOMES

Police Are Looking More Deeply Into Domestic Entanglement

That there is a third woman in the tangled web of matrimonial deceit which Charles N. Brown, alias Thompson, who is under arrest on a charge of vagrancy, has woven for himself, is now the belief of the detective force which has been investigating his career for several days.

Who the woman is or what part she played in Brown's wholesale conjugal scheme, Captain Peterson declines to say until he has made further inquiries into what he claims are well-founded suspicions and which are also voiced by Miss Kate Byrne, secretary of the Catholic Humane Society. Miss Byrne says she is almost positive that there is a third woman because of one she has met in connection with her investigations into the career of Brown, who showed great agitation when she heard of his arrest. The identity of the woman is unknown to Miss Byrne, but she has consulted with the police in an effort to have her located.

Miss Byrne appeared at police headquarters this morning for the purpose of swearing to a complaint against Brown on a charge of adultery, in being a married man with a wife at 911 Twenty-fourth street, and having lived at 911 Eleventh street as Thompson with Kate Rowe, who believed herself to be Mrs. Thompson and to whom two children were born. The prosecuting attorney had finished his labors for the day and Miss Byrne failed in getting her complaint. She says she will attend to the matter on Monday.

In the meantime Brown is still in the county prison. He was in the Police Court this morning, pleading not guilty to the charge of vagrancy against him. His case was set for trial on August 13.

AN UNUSUAL MASHER.

He is said to be a masher of the type seldom seen of late in this city. The police charge that he was in the habit of endeavoring to start a conversation with every girl he met who seemed to strike his fancy. Complaints made against a man closely answering his description and who had been pursuing unescorted women returning home after nightfall have been pouring into headquarters from the Mission district.

The arrest was made by Detectives Gallagher and Molke at Palmer's residence on Willow avenue.

Mrs. Bruscher, angered beyond measure, ran to the window and fired two shots after the fleeing stranger. The sound of the reports attracted the attention of a policeman, who immediately began knocking on the front door.

Bruscher at first thought that it was the stranger back again, perhaps armed, and he stood with a loaded revolver while his wife unfastened the latch. The officer then arrested him for discharging firearms within the city limits, and when the case was called in the police court this morning it was dismissed and two detectives have been detailed to look for the stranger.

Mrs. Bruscher is prostrated and has refused to make a statement.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Examination has been concluded for the position of Chief Hospital Nurse of the navy and the likelihood is that Miss Esther V. Hassan, of Washington, D. C., will be appointed. It is the purpose of the navy department to organize a corps of female nurses for service in various local hospitals and abroad.

Captain Holds Ship as Surgeons Work

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—While in mid-ocean, the Cedric, of the White Star line, was stopped for nearly three hours Sunday afternoon so that a surgical operation could be performed on Mrs. Thomas Trebell of New York, a cabin passenger.

The two surgeons, with the hospital steward and nurses on the ship, were through with their work after an hour's delay, but the condition of the patient was so critical that the ship was not sent ahead at her normal speed for two hours more. On her arrival yesterday Mrs. Trebell was taken to the New York Hospital, and Dr. Prior believed she was on the road to recovery.

Captain C. A. Bartlett, commander of the Cedric, was informed that the operations set in

CRIMINALS TO INVADE CITY

Police Exercised at Call for Convention of Questionable Characters Issued by 'King of Tramps.'

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Police headquarters have heard that Dr. Ben L. Tolman of Chicago, who calls himself "King of Tramps," will have spent the last twenty years doing reform work among the inmates of the underworld, has issued a call for a "Convention of Criminals" to meet in this city next month. In that part of Dr. Tolman's program which is directed toward the obtaining of safe conduct and immunity from arrest of the delegates while they are in the city, Inspector McFetty, in charge of the detective bureau, made strong threats last night.

THREATENED WITH ARREST.

"I'll order the arrest of every criminal who arrives to the convention," said Inspector McFetty. "And I can't yet tell you that I won't arrest those persons who are getting up the affair. We want no assembly of criminals in my city."

"Dr. Tolman says," it was suggested, "that all of the criminals will agree to no criminal act while they are in the city."

"Dr. Tolman may believe what these fellows tell him, said the inspector, "but I can tell you we will arrest all of them as suspicious persons and the chances are that we'll find that many of them are fugitives from justice, escaped prisoners, men under indictment or men wanted in connection with various crimes. We'll throw out the drugstore and gather them in."

TO SEE WHERE THEY STAND.

According to the prospectus of the convention criminals in all parts of the country are to meet here to discuss their relations to society, to the police and to one another. "Brotherhood is to be the watchword of the convention."

The titles of some of the addresses to be delivered at the convention, if the police forgot to go around and arrest everybody connected with the gathering, are:

"Twenty-one years a criminal, twenty years a prisoner."

"Dope and Booze."

"Do the police give the criminal a fair trial?"

"Easier to commit crime than to find a job."

"What society owes the criminal."

"The average income of the criminal."

IT IS TO LAUGH.

Inspector McFetty laughed when he came upon the last topic.

"They'd all gotten their averages if we let them collect in New York," he said. "This is a hospitable city, but we have to draw the line somewhere, and we'll do it before the temporary chairman of the convention begins his opening remarks. It does seem a shame though to stop it before the committee on resolutions gets its report ready. I'd give a month's salary to get a look at that report."

NOVELIST GIVEN DRAMATIC TIME

Ia Fiercely Attacked by Two Italians on the Moraga Valley Road.

Hermann Whittaker, novelist and short story writer, with his wife and family in the Wickham Havens place in the Moraga Valley road, had an experience Thursday night which may prove the basis for a dramatic tale.

While on the highway to the College Avenue car line with Mrs. Whittaker and daughter, he was attacked by two Italians, only saving himself from serious injury by a flight of half an hour's duration.

While on the way to the car line the Italians passed the Whittakers' buggy, and a dog which was trailing the foreigners' buggy sprang at Mrs. Whittaker, tearing her coat open.

The men in the buggy took this as a proper occasion for a display of mirth, which the novelist promptly resented. The two men grew angry and jumping from their buggies rushed upon the writer.

FELLS FIRST ASSAILANT.

Whittaker struck one across the face with his cane, knocking him to the ground. The other stopped to help his fallen comrade to his feet and into the buggy, and the assailants drove off.

"I thought the affair ended after this," said Whittaker. "We had traversed only a couple of hundred yards, however, before they came galloping back, each man armed with a club as thick as his wrist. I saw that I was in a dangerous predicament, and in order to give my wife and daughter time to escape by a path through the fields, I climbed a steep bank and made use of a fence as a barricade. From here I was able to keep up a vigorous fire with clubs. Occasionally I hit the horse, hoping to add to runaway and a snatched buggy to my credit."

HORSE SAVED HIM.

"The horse was so restive that only one of the men could leave him at a time and I thus was saved from a joint attack. One fellow old try to reach me at the fence and I landed a hard blow with my cane on his shoulder."

"Thereupon the men who had been attacking me drove off, still yelling threats that they would come back and kill me."

Whittaker sustained severe abrasions on his hands and a broad welt on his back from the blows he received.

SALVATION ARMY MEETING.

A special program will be given in the Salvation Army Citadel, 525 Ninth Street, at 8 p.m. The band and organists' brigade will render new and special pieces, the public is cordially invited.

REGULAR REPUBLICANS PUT TICKET IN THE FIELD IN INTEREST OF CLEAN POLITICS

Disgusted With the Tactics of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League

BERKELEY, Aug. 8.—Disgusted with the tactics of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League reformers of the Lincoln-Roosevelt party and the East Berkeley decided this morning to put a ticket in the field and make a fight at the primaries on Tuesday.

THE CAUSE.

The refusal of the leagues at their caucus Thursday night last to endorse the candidates of Judges Melvin, Harris and Waste for the Superior bench was followed by immediate reaction and many of the conservative members of the caucus openly expressed their indignation at the gung-ho methods invoked by the Spear-Phelan-Young machine. A spontaneous movement began which has now resulted in a determination to wage war against the machine in the interests of straight Republicanism. In an open address issued to the voters of Berkeley this morning the purposes of the new ticket are set forth.

JUDGES ENDORSED.

These include the endorsement of Judge Waste, Melvin and Harris for the bench, the endorsement of State Senator Russ Lukens and Congressman Knowland and common honesty and decency in politics.

"Re-election of capable and honest judges."

CANDIDATES ENDORSED.

"We endorse the following candidates for offices:

"Hon. Joseph R. Knowland for representative to Congress from the Third Congressional District.

"Hon. Russell G. Lukens, State Senator from the Fifteenth Senatorial District.

"Hon. Wm. H. Waste, Judge of Superior Court.

"Hon. Harry A. Melvin, Judge of Superior Court.

"Cast a good straight Republican vote for these delegates Tuesday, August 11."

THE DELEGATES.

The delegates on the ticket for the various conventions are as follows:

Dr. C. A. Meek, Professor P. B. Boone, Dr. M. Care, Harry J. Spilane, Christopher Stoddard, Dr. Frank R. Woolsey, Thomas Blackard, George Stoddard, Professor Walter E. Magee, M. C. Threlkeld, J. E. Allen, J. A. Sullivan, Charles B. Mills, R. E. McGill, Sr., George II. Stricker, W. J. Mortimer.

State—Walter Heywood, John K. Orr, Dr. H. N. Rowell, A. F. Schad, J. T. Rosister Mikal, L. H. Lewars, Charles A. Carr.

Congressional—George D. McElroy, E. W. Nichols, H. H. Howard, Dr. J. N. Roselli, Frank Fowden, J. T. Donahue, Rosister Mikal, L. H. Lewars.

SELF-EXPLANATORY.

The address explanatory of the objects of the movement being mailed to voters this morning is as follows:

"A committee of Berkeley Republicans respectfully submits to the Republican voters the enclosed list of delegates to be voted for at the primaries Tuesday, August 11.

"At an open caucus of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League of Berkeley, held on Thursday evening, a resolution endorsing the candidacy of Judges Melvin, Harris and Waste was defeated. We believe the voters of Berkeley favor their re-nomination and endorsement of Hon. Wm. H. Waste. In view of the action of the caucus requests your support for the

BIGGY SLATED TO GIVE WAY TO BURNS

Chief of Rudolph Spreckels' Sleuth Brigade Will Likely Be Made Police Chief.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 8.—It now appears that William J. Biggy's friends have turned against him and that he will soon be deposed as chief of police.

The first blow came Thursday afternoon, when Biggy was called to Mayor Taylor's office and censured for an alleged want of discretion on his part in arresting owners of automobiles for violating the city speed ordinance.

Rumor has it that William J. Burns will be the new chief and that the anxiety to get rid of Biggy has behind it the desire to place Burns in a position where he will have an enlarged sphere for his operations for Spreckels.

That Burns and Biggy were on the best of terms at the time of Biggy's appointment to office is well known. But soon thereafter Biggy began to assert his own authority. When Burns insisted on keeping Claudians in close confinement and not allowing anyone to visit him, contrary to the usual police practice, Biggy is said to have resented it and commented that Burns was going beyond the limits of the law. Public opinion, however, was not in accordance with the committee's decision, and Biggy was soon compelled to yield to Burns.

Now comes the news that William J. Burns will be the new chief and that the anxiety to get rid of Biggy has behind it the desire to place Burns in a position where he will have an enlarged sphere for his operations for Spreckels.

This case is only one of thousands, and it is for us to decide whether our own case shall be a similar one. Shall we, when we are old and must make room for younger and older men and women, sit under our vine and fig tree, content with knowing that out there, the children of men do not die alone, or shall we too, seek a refuge in the Home of the Friendless?

Not many years ago the writer, while in China, was accosted by an old lady who had lost her home and her husband before her. She was poor, poorly dressed, but neat and clean, and every line of her careworn face and every intimation of her voice showed more than ordinary refinement and good breeding. She was surely one who had known the softer paths of life. While waiting for the car that would take her to her destination, the Home of the Friendless, she asked the driver about herself. She had been married, had lost her husband before her, but her physical spirit abdicated and she had left to begin that late in life to support herself. But she was old, youth and strength were too easily obtained to live any need for old age and weakness; therefore she was on her way back to the home. She was the daughter of a highly valued railroad official, and she had been the wife of a highly educated insurance man, but is both instances no portion of the salary had been saved for them; they had vowed to love and cherish.

This case is only one of thousands, and it is for us to decide whether our own case shall be a similar one. Shall we, when we are old and must make room for younger and older men and women, sit under our vine and fig tree, content with knowing that out there, the children of men do not die alone, or shall we too, seek a refuge in the Home of the Friendless?

Under his instruction from the local insurance men, Mr. Le Ballister will open headquarters in the best hotel of St. Paul, and seek the same with choice products of this section, which will make the place popular with the insurance-men from the lesser favored sections.

EXAMPLE CONTAGIOUS.

When the success of the move was demonstrated in Oakland, all the important cities of the state agreed to follow the local example and, several months ago, the latter formed the state organization referred to, with the intention of still later forming local societies after the pattern of that in this city.

Under his instruction from the local insurance men, Mr. Le Ballister will open headquarters in the best hotel of St. Paul, and seek the same with choice products of this section, which will make the place popular with the insurance-men from the lesser favored sections.

The report shows that Edoff has succeeded in charging off a total of $385,804.66 from the liabilities of the institution. He shows that the net excess of income over actual operating expenses since the commencement of his receivership has been $34,470.81, of which $439.22 was earned in July. The liabilities have been reduced from $835,955.24 on June 30, to $824,403.09 on July 31.

INSURANCE MEN BOOM OAKLAND

F. W. LE BALLISTER.

Local Underwriters Commission
F. W. Le Ballister for Work at St. Paul.

F. W. Le Ballister of this city, secretary of the State branch of the National Association of Local Fire Insurance Men, left for St. Paul, yesterday for the purpose of representing the insurance men of this State in the meeting of the association in question, which is to be held there, beginning on the 11th of this month and continuing to the 13th.

REPRESENT OAKLAND.

While representing the State organization, Mr. Le Ballister will, in a special manner, be the representative of the insurance men of this city and indeed of Oakland itself.

The gentleman in question was given carte blanche for the purpose of enabling him to carry out the wishes of the local organization in the respects mentioned.

While he is away, Mr. Le Ballister is not to talk of insurance alone. He will also talk about the State of California and in a special manner of the great city of Oakland.

ITEM OF COST.

A dual commission of this kind usually costs something, as may be anticipated by the people who have contributed to the holding up of the delegation who have gone from this state to national political conventions.

But in this instance, the matter of expense has not been considered by the members of the Oakland Board of Fire Underwriters, of which organization Mr. Le Ballister was the first secretary and from whom power he was chosen to represent the association.

Mr. Le Ballister was induced to come to the meeting under promises of "plenty of beer and eats" and for more than three hours sat around a number of kegs of lager, which had been brought in for the occasion, until some of them showed unmistakable signs of exhilaration and were restrained only by efforts of the cooler-headed reformist who were in charge of the evening.

EFFECT OF HOME ORGANIZATION.

The liberality of the complexion with which the local organization men have been treated, Mr. Le Ballister is recognized.

He was assisted in his program by Henry Herken (who was also before the grand jury on Thursday last), who made a speech in behalf of the Lincoln-Roosevelt candidates. The kegs of beer were rolled in from a nearby saloon until long past the usual bedtime of the reformists, and when the lights in the hall were finally put out, many of them adjourned to Melo's establishment, where joy reigned uncontested until the wee small hours of morning.

The hall this morning was strewn with empty kegs and trenchers testifying to the fact that the meeting had not, as was predicted, "gone dry."

AN EXAMPLE OF ENERGY AND ENTERPRISE

The brewing of beer on the entire Pacific Coast has reached the highest point of excellence in San Francisco by the John Wieland Brewery—a mammoth plant that stands today a monument to the city's enterprise. Wieland's Beer is a master product—brewed in the oldest, largest, most modern and complete establishment on the Coast, and the beer is increasing demand for San Francisco's display in the selection of their beverages. Wieland's Beer is bottled in the brewery's own bottling-house, with machinery which the public is invited to inspect—complete as any in the world—and every known method is employed to assure San Franciscans of a finished product excelled in purity or quality anywhere.

Each month a handsome safe containing one hundred dollars will be given away by the brewery.

You get a key with every box of one dozen quarts or two dozen pints of Wieland's Beer purchased in San Francisco or Oakland, and if any one of the keys you receive will unlock the drawer within the safe containing the money. It is yours, the one hundred dollars.

But if he hit you and kept mauling, each impact of his fist would tell you whether he is able to stand the hammering, and a half dozen jabs would probably knock you down.

Now advertising is, after all, a matter of hitting the right eye. If a man lambastes you on the eve and walked away and waited a week before repaid the performance, he couldn't hurt you very badly. Between attacks you would have an opportunity to recover from the effect of the first blow.

But if he hit you and kept mauling, each impact of his fist

SECOND WARD REPUBLICANS ENDORSE G. RUSS LUKENS

LEE MURPHY.

SENATOR PERKINS IS GIVEN AN OVATION

Heney Is Scored By Guest of Evening at Rousing Smoker Given Last Night.

State Senator G. R. Lukens addressed the Second Ward Republican Club last night at its big smoker given in his honor and his remarks were cheered by the echo.

The club's quarters at 1712 San Pablo Avenue were crowded and the greatest enthusiasm prevailed throughout the evening.

Attorney William O'Brien, president of the club, presided as chairman and Lee Murphy was secretary. Both delivered brief addresses.

SENATOR LUKENS SPEAKS.

Senator Lukens, when called upon to address the club, said in part:

"Your interest in the campaign is reflected in your countenances. They speak to me to this effect—that a prolonged, thorough campaign, which is about to come to a close, has been going on in this district and ward and that you still maintain a great interest. It shows that you are determined on ascertaining candid Republicans, the kind that spells Taft; that spells Lincoln and spans across a half a century of activity to Roosevelt."

"The kind that does not speak and falsely, and with intent to deceive, link the names of Lincoln and Roosevelt. You are the kind that go to the battle with faces forward and not your backs. You are the kind that take your blows in front and are open and above board."

EULOGIZES SENATOR PERKINS.

"Unflinching constancy to duty has made Senator George C. Perkins a power of influence. As his seniority grows and the longer he serves the people, he is promoted and now he is chairman of the naval committee."

"California has a great interest in naval and maritime matters. Our harbors are the most advantageous in the whole nation. They are at present the center and cynosure of the eyes of the whole world. They are the gateway to the vast Pacific countries. No Pacific nation can increase its commerce without the United States. Therefore, the Pacific trade should be built up. The Republican party stands for that progress."

BOY BEFORE THE MAST.

"Senator Perkins was a boy before the mast. He was born to maritime affairs. Is there a man in California—in the whole country—who is better able, because of experience, to advance the Pacific commerce?"

SCORES HENRY.

"Senator Perkins rose from a cabin boy to be United States Senator, without ever a whisper of scandal in his career."

"That ass stant district attorney across the bay, Mr. Heney, has never been a Republican. Why has Heney joined with Spreckels and Burns and gone out in politics for? He is trying to knock the legitimate sources of strength from under Senator Perkins."

"Heney and others are climbing and digging in every way, trying to climb into power. He undertook to clean up San Francisco. Has he done it? No."

"Can any man say who owns Senator Perkins? That he has a jerk-line on him?"

ENDORSES SENATOR PERKINS.

"This campaign is to show our appreciation and desire to return Senator Perkins to office. Are you going to listen to a few miles burrowing in the dark? I appeal to you to go to the polls Tuesday and endorse Senator Perkins."

George W. Reed also addressed the assemblage and appealed to those present to support Senator Lukens and his suggestion was heartily applauded.

Deputy District Attorney Phil M. Carey was one of the speakers of the evening. He said in part:

LIKES WORD "REGULAR."

"It was a good sound to me when the chairman addressed you as regular Republicans. I like the word regular. It stands for the principles of the Republican party as enunciated by all the great leaders of the party from years gone by to the present time, and as now ratified by William H. Taft and James S. Sherman. It means protection to the workingman. That is why it stands for what has been in the public for twenty-two years. He served in the Federal courts more than well. He served for beyond what could be expected as governor of the Islands, which were given to us as a sacred trust. For his excellent service there he was taken from the Islands into the cabinet and placed at the head of the war department. This he reorganized and made efficient and economic."

James S. Sherman has served in Congress for eighteen years. He knows financial history from bottoming to end. He is familiar with all the financial interests of the country. He knows that to tinker with the financial laws is serious and dangerous to the country."

AIDES THE COUNTRY.

"It was unfortunate that we had a financial stringency come on, but it is finally drifting away. It was James S. Reed's record of the Biters proves it to be a sure standby in cases of Poor Appetite, Heartburn, Indigestion or other Stomach Ills. Don't fail to try a bottle."

ASKS HENRY ABOUT THE $30,000

Attorney Newburgh Calls the Special Prosecutor to Testify as Expert on Counsel Fees.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 8.—Francis J. Heney was called as an expert on counsel fees by Attorney A. S. Newburgh during the preliminary hearing of Abraham Ruef before Judge Cabaniss yesterday.

Newburgh called the court's attention to the fact that great stress had been laid on the $30,000 received by Ruef from the Parkside people and inasmuch as Heney had received a like sum from the Contra Costa Water company, the assistant district attorney was competent to give expert opinion.

The examination of Heney was curtailed by reason of his having to leave on the 4 o'clock train for the south. During the short period that the assistant district attorney was on the stand, there was great excitement in the police court.

FEES PAID IN CURRENCY.

Heney testified that he was an attorney-at-law and was admitted to practice in all the courts of this State and likewise the Supreme Court of the United States.

"You have devoted some time of your practice to the legal business of corporations?" asked Newburgh.

Assistant District Attorney Ward objected to the question. Newburgh announced that he was laying a foundation in order to ask the witness the value of legal services.

Heney's answer was in the affirmative, whereupon Newburgh asked: "Have you in your practice as an attorney, and while you were engaged as an attorney for corporations, ever received a fee in currency?"

Ward objected and said it did not matter whether Heney had received it in currency or in gold. The witness could not restrain himself, and although the objection was sustained, said: "I can say to you that I never once received a fee in currency at my request."

THE RECEIPT FOR $30,000.

"Mr. Heney, did you ever give a receipt to the Contra Costa Water company, in which you acknowledged the receipt of $30,000?" Newburgh asked and explained to the court that he only asked the question to learn whether the receipt was in existence.

Despite objection made by the prosecution, Heney said:

"Why don't you subpoena Garret McEnerney and ask him to bring it?"

"Is this a facsimile of your signature?" asked Newburgh, handing the witness a copy of The Examiner containing a photographic facsimile of the receipt given by Heney to the Contra Costa Water company for $30,000.

Objection was made to the question and the court requested Newburgh to present his authorities, which the latter claimed gave him the right to interrogate the witness along the lines suggested. Newburgh declined to do so until he had asked three or four more questions.

WILL CALL HENRY AGAIN.

"If your honor please," interrupted Heney, "I think I have some rights in this matter. I make this suggestion: These questions are being asked solely for the purpose of trying to affect a primary election that is coming off on next Tuesday."

Newburgh denied the statement and the court attempted to prevent Heney from volunteering statements, but without success, as the witness a moment later informed Newburgh that he did not care anything about his feelings or Ruef's either.

Judge Cabaniss delivered a long statement on the advisability of asking Heney questions of similar import. Newburgh declared he desired to ask the questions and take the court's ruling. Heney then said:

"I ask to be excused at this time. The sole purpose of those questions is to insult me."

Newburgh hurriedly asserted that this was not his intention. Judge Cabaniss then excused the witness until next Wednesday, when he will be recalled.

The woman declined to answer any questions concerning the trouble, and she was therefore committed to the County Hospital until she may recover her health.

SENATOR LUKENS AROUSES REPUBLICAN ENTHUSIASM

Delivers Address Before Five Hundred Voters of the First Ward

State Senator G. Russell Lukens was generously cheered and applauded when he made his appearance before the five hundred Republicans of the First Ward, who gathered in Friedberg's Hall last evening to hear the doctrines of the party leaders. Prior to the arrival of Senator Lukens, several prominent members of the party delivered short addresses on the issues at stake in the coming campaign, and urged the regular Republican ticket. Senator Lukens arrived at the hall shortly after 9 o'clock, having made a rapid journey from San Pablo avenue, where he spoke earlier in the evening. As he mounted the platform he was cheered to the echo for several minutes, after which close attention was paid to his remarks.

Upon his introduction to the audience by D. W. Irwin, chairman of the meeting, Senator Lukens said:

GRATIFYING RECEPTION.

"This generous welcome which has been extended to me throughout my district over since my return is more than gratifying. It only serves to impress me more strongly with the knowledge that the friends of the reform movement are the more world—it means more than the mere world—it means more and fighting and striving for the interests of the man whom you honor by calling friend. The signs further indicate that you have a deep abiding interest in this our home city, and in the principles at stake in the coming elections.

FILLED SAINTED NAME.

"I want to say a word regarding the reasons and excuses which are being given by some of our former regular Republicans for joining a so-called reformist party which has filled the sainted name of Lincoln and stolen the irreproachable name of Roosevelt. This Lincoln-Roosevelt League, which is attempting to disorganize the Republican party in California, is condoning the men called Lincolnites, battling the means they are achieving so-called victories by surrogates. When they discovered that they could not shake the position of Joseph R. Knowland in the love and esteem of the people of Alameda county they endorsed his candidacy and claimed a victory over the regular Republicans. When they found they could not shake the position of Superior Judge Henry Melvin they endorsed him and claimed another victory. Now they are attempting to disclaim the remarkable record made by Melvin and his associates, Waste and Harris, and to force these great Jurists into a political campaign, in order to throw mud upon the main body of the party. They have not announced any charges against any one of these three men—they simply initiate a miserable system of whispering tongues in order to worry and harass three great and honorable men who should not be dragged into any contest for their offices.

PRAISES FOR SENATOR.

"One of the main questions at issue in the coming elections is your selection of delegates to the State Legislature who shall represent the national standard of California. In the Congress of the United States, it is up to the voters of Central California to choose between a tyro and a tried and true statesman who has already served his State at Washington for many, many years. Each one of these years has seen untiring effort on his part and many a fruitful victory in the national legislature for his State. I allude to Senator Perkins whose position in the United States Senate is invaluable to the State of California.

UPHOLDS STATE HONOR.

"Senator Perkins has upheld the honor and integrity of California in Washington, and I am sure he will continue to do so. We are going to enter into the cause that you must live with him to know him. We have lived with Joseph R. Knowland and we have watched his career. We have learned to love him and believe in him. When the Alameda returns roll in next Tuesday you will see that the Emery City is proud of Joe Knowland and anxious to return him to Congress. You have all expressed confidence in him and satisfaction in his work. But if you have not confidence in him, let me assure you that he is a solid member of Congress. He is a good man, and he has been a credit to the State of California.

POISONOUS SPEECHES.

"Phil M. Carey—There has been a man going up and down this State spreading falsehoods and misrepresentations against the Republican party, under the guise of being a reformer. He has tried to disorganize the party, because he knows that only by dissension in our ranks can the regular Republicans secure a foothold in California. I believe that this publication which this man has injected into the ears of his hearers are fabricated from falsehood, for I consider the political motives of the regular Republican party in this State just as decent and as honorable as those of the man who is attempting to poison public sentiment against it. Let us vote for the candidates who represent something and somebody, instead of those who represent nothing and nobody.

HE IS CONFIDENT.

"William H. McDonald (Livermore)—Confound such reactionaries and doctrinaires as we are compelled to combat from time to time. Most of them when they were reformers were leaders looking for a chance to become famous. As soon as a man is kicked out of office by the voters of the State he starts to holler "graft" until he gets back in again. My politics are to get on the right side and then let that side straight across the board—and you can rest assured the backsliders will be beaten next Tuesday.

FOR PERKINS AND KNOWLAND.

"Frank M. Shay—My politics in the Assembly are those of the regular Republicans. I want to protect the interests of the people who send me there and I want to see a great system of docks and wharves on the Oakland water front; which means that I shall stand solidly for Senator Perkins and Congressman Knowland.

KILLED BY BRING EAR TOUCHING WIRE AS THEIR GUEST

Cannery Employee Finds Death When He Inadvertently Lays His Hand on Wire.

NEW YORK, August 8.—Among the passengers who arrived from abroad on the steamer Mauretania were Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills, Miss Beatrice Mills, Miss Jeanette Mills and Mrs. Maturin Livingston, mother of Mrs. Mills. They are returning from a summer spent in England and on the continent.

Mr. and Mrs. Mills came to America as their guests the Earl of Granard, a solidly young man of distinguished appearance, who is travelling as Colonel Forbes, his family name. It was declared that an engagement between the earl and Miss Beatrice might be expected at any time. Mills, when asked if his daughter was engaged to the Earl of Granard, smiled and said that there was no truth in such a report. The earl, he said, was here as his guest. He added that "Colonel Forbes" was a friend of the family and would spend a few weeks in this country.

HAS SOME TITLES.

The Earl of Granard owns an estate of 21,300 acres and his country seat is Castle Forbes, in London county, Ireland. The earl saw active service in the South African war, where he won the Queen's medal. He is Viscount Granard and Baron Clanebough. He is lord in waiting to the king and master of the houses.

Miss Beatrice Mills is one of the twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Mills. She is a handsome girl, fond of out-of-door sports and very English in appearance and manner. She and her twin sister, Gladys, now Mrs. Henry Carnegie Philpot, came out in society five years ago. They have passed their summers in London and later in Newport.

LAST RITES FOR LATE SENATOR

Many Prominent Visitors Attend Simple Burial Service Over Remains of William B. Allison.

DUBLIQUE, Ia., Aug. 8.—As he lived, so Senator William B. Allison buried today in a manner devoid of all ostentation. Services were held at the residence of the dead statesman and while not of private character, the limited accommodations of the home permitted only the presence of the distinguishe visitors, relatives and the most intimate friends of the late Senator.

The service was simple and consisted of the reading of the Twenty-third Psalm and a prayer. The Rev. J. C. Bergen of the Westminster Probyterian Church officiated. There was no music. The interment was private and after the Presbyterian service had been said by Mr. Bergen the body of the Senator was lowered into its last resting place on the hillsides, which overlooks the Mississippi river.

TRIBUTE TO HIS MEMORY. All Dubuque paid silent tribute to Senator Allison today. During the hours of the funeral not a wheel turned throughout the city and every business house closed its doors, ranging at half past from public buildings and hundreds of homes and business houses were trimmed with crepe. A most effective feature was the winding with black and white of the trolley poles throughout the main thoroughfares of the city.

The body of Senator Allison laid in state yesterday afternoon and evening and thousands of people called to pay their respects.

The pallbearers were all residents of the city and intimate friends of the Senator.

DISTINGUISHED VISITORS. Many distinguished visitors were in attendance, among them being members of the Congressional committee named by Vice-President Fairbanks and Speaker Cannon, there was a large delegation from Des Moines, consisting of Governor Cummins and other State officers. The Des Moines party brought with them a beautiful floral basket six and one-half feet long and three feet wide. The body was of white carnations and in the center, Wright in red, was the word "Allison". In the corners were clusters of lilies of the valley and in the fourth was fastened a ribbon with the dates "1863-1908", these marking the duration of his official life at Washington.

The grave of Senator Allison is in the family lot in Longwood Cemetery. A modest marble shaft bearing the single word "Allison" was erected on the lot twenty years ago. The grave is close to that in which is buried the body of the late Speaker Henderson.

PRESIDENT CALHOUN MAKES REPLY TO MAYOR TAYLOR

City Cannot Ask Surrender of Property Without Compensation

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 8.—In reply to Mayor Taylor's open letter concerning the operation of the outer tracks on lower Market street, President Patrick Calhoun of the United Railroads yesterday addressed an open communication to the mayor that very clearly defines the issue between the city administration and the company.

Mr. Calhoun takes the position that a city government has no right to demand the surrender of property without just compensation and that the demand of the administration that the Sutter-street Company give up its exclusive franchise rights to the use of the tracks in question is such an unjust demand.

Following is Mr. Calhoun's letter to the mayor:

August 6, 1908.
Hon. Edward Robeson Taylor, Mayor of the City of San Francisco.
Dear Sir: Your open letter in the present case regarding the operation of the tracks on the Sutter street railway company on Market street between Sansome and the ferry demands that there is no foundation for the statement made by you that "the sole question is shall the United Railroads be permitted to continue to do what they have done wrong, and by trick and device be permitted to maintain, for a number of years, the street railroad monopoly on lower Market street?" Market street, under your administration, franchise was granted "on the 16th day of September, 1879, by the board of supervisors to the Sutter street railway company for its successors and assigns, to construct lay down, maintain and operate a line of street cars, a single or double track street railroad, commencing at the corner of Market street and Geary street, thence along Market street to Seventeenth street". This grant gave to the Market street railway company the right to operate its cars on the streets of the city and expressly provided that the city could also grant rights on Market street for five blocks to one other company and to the same extent.

You also stated that on November 3, 1879, the Sutter street railway company, its successors and assigns, was granted the right to construct, lay down, maintain and operate a line of street cars, a single or double track street railroad, with all the necessary switches and connections at the city front on Market street, thence along Market street to Sutter street, etc.

ONLY ONE OTHER COMPANY.

You also admit that this grant was made specifically upon the condition that the city could grant to one other company and to the same extent the right to lay down, maintain and operate a line of street cars, a single or double track street railroad, with all the necessary switches and connections at the city front on Market street to the Sutter street railway company for the purpose of constructing a road and without whose money the city would have received the benefit of this street car line.

Now between the lines of your letter runs a clear admission that the Sutter street railway company, if it had not sold its right to lay down, maintain and operate its cars on the Sutter street railway company and of the United Railroads to do everything in their power to protect the corporation with whom the Sutter street railway company had bargained, motor for the purpose of constructing a road and without whose money the city would have received the benefit of this street car line.

Now between the lines of your letter runs a clear admission that the Sutter street railway company, if it had not sold its right to lay down, maintain and operate its cars on the Sutter street railway company and of the United Railroads to do everything in their power to protect the corporation with whom the Sutter street railway company had bargained, motor for the purpose of constructing a road and without whose money the city would have received the benefit of this street car line.

In another passage you blame the United Railroads for having temporarily operated its cars by electricity and charge them with wrongdoing for having exercised this permission. You make state, however, the fact that the wire over the outside north track was erected to aid in the reconstruction of the lower part of Market street and that from time to time as was found necessary to do the city in building sewers, the tracks were shifted not only once but several times at great expense and inconvenience to the United Railroads and that the wire over the outside north track was never erected until a special permit for its erection had been granted by your administration. Sutter street to say that no rights have ever been granted on account of the erection of these wires, and that your administration were quite content to continue temporary permission for the erection of temporary north-track on tracks until the other had finished its work and until after the crowds had passed the arrival of the fleet had come and gone. In another passage you demand of the United Railroads for the operation of horse cars. In another you state that the United Railroads could not operate its cars even temporarily, without coming into conflict with the general police of the supervisors because it had not acquired this portion of the Sut street grant, and therefore the permission in grant, it is to operate its cars by electricity did not apply to the tracks owned by the Sutter street company. In another you say the United Railroads "imperceptibly under the name of the Sutter Street Company, therupon set up the old horse cars, which they are now operating."

CITY IS TO BLAME.

The Sutter street company owns a double track, its bondholders its stockholders and the general public its tracks in Market street. The city prevents it from operating its cars with electricity. It leaves to the Sutter street company the right to do this, therefore, except to operate them by horse power. As a condition to giving the citizens efficient service you demand that the Sutter street railway company surrender grants which you admit were made to it nearly thirty years ago.

In order that the issue should not be clouded, that the city should not be called upon to surrender a single right to give to the Sutter street line an additional grant, the Sutter street company and the United Railroads agreed, at the request of a large number of the foremost men in this city, the representatives of commercial bodies, merchants and proprietors, that the Sutter street company would permit the United Railroads to operate its cars through to the Ferry on a mere temporary permit, to be issued by the Board of Supervisors, so neither the city nor the Sutter street company surrendering thereby the slightest right or changing in any degree their respective legal status. In spite of this and the action of the part of the company you seek now to call in the Sutter street railway until it surrenders grants made nearly thirty years ago, thereby demanding from citizens what you could not get them to do as early as 1879, but you deprive the citizens generally of efficient service and especially injure the property and business that has grown up along the line of the Sut street grant during the thirty years of its existence. The lease has not been made by the United Railroads. The question involved is deeper than the right to operate the Sut street line, either by horse or by electricity. What is the question? Shall the people of this city be deprived of efficient service? Shall the merchants and property owners of Sutter street be injured in their trade and their business, a city government, however pure or however benevolent its motives, has a right to demand from a private citizen or a public service corporation a surrender of its franchise or its rights without just compensation?

Yours truly,
PATRICK CALHOUN,
President United Railroads of San Francisco.

SOCIETY AROUSES CAUSTIC COMMENT

Gay Night Party at San Mateo's Hotel Followed by Protests From Guests.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 8.—The Peter Martins, the Walter Martins, Miss Alice Hager, James D. Phelan and Ernest Grau are just now the center of gossip and comment that bids fair to disrupt the entire thermometer colony at the Peninsula Hotel in San Mateo.

The talk has been going forward for a week but it reached a climax Thursday, the morning after the night before, when a dinner party given by the Martins called down upon the management of the hotel the more or less angry and indignant protests of those of the guests who had returned early.

On the heels of the protest came even a card. Major W. H. Stoddard sent to each of the Martins a polite remonstrance.

GOSSIP FROM THE SAN FRANCISCO WEEKLIES

LONG DELAY OF THE LAW.

On August 19, 1906, John Siemsen and Louis Dabner committed an atrocious murder by shooting to death with a gas pipe a poor shoe-dealer who kept a little store in McAllister street. Other crimes, equally cruel and desperate, were committed by the pair of murderers.

On Friday, July 31, 1908, those two dangerous criminals were hanged at San Quentin in the presence of a large number of people who had assembled to witness the execution. We have here instructive object lessons on the inefficient mode of dealing with murderers. Our laws say that murder shall be punished by hanging, but they do not declare that it shall take almost two years for justice to overtake persons found guilty of the heinous crime. The protracted trial of Siemsen and Dabner was a disgrace to civilized government. Every man should have ample opportunity to defend himself in court, but it is ridiculous to assume that it needed two years to determine whether the gaspipe murderers were deserving of capital punishment. Such tardiness is injurious to the community without being humane to the prisoners. It is, on the contrary, the refinement of cruelty to the men trembling under the shadow of the gallows. Then again, when at last the technicalities of the law have all been disposed of, and the appeals to the higher tribunals have been refused, it is not the proper course to make a holiday spectacle of the death of the prisoners. That is barbaric. It may not have been so reprehensible a few hundred years ago, but in this day and generation it is scandalous. A few officers of the law whose duty it is to attend to the execution should alone be witnesses thereto.—Wasp.

THE BIG MAN WITH A SMALL NAME.

If William Howard Taft is elected President of the United States, he will be the biggest man with the smallest name in the list of Presidents. He weighs 350 pounds, and his family name contains four letters. There were four letters in the name of James K. Polk, but none of them was repeated. There is a superfluous "t" in the name of Mr. Taft. Anagrammatically, there are two words in the name of "Taft"—"taft" and "fat." Bryan's name contains five letters, two distinct Irish names and two significant words. The five-lettered Presidents were John Adams, John Quincy Adams, John T. and Ulysses S. Grant. The anagram of Bryan's name comprises two words—"Run" and "by." It is also worthy of record that Mr. Bryan's full name contains twenty letters, a complement only equalled among the Presidents by William Henry Harrison. It is notable that Mr. Hearst's candidate, Hisgen, and the candidate of the Populist party, Thomas Watson, are both six-lettered "possibilities," as were James Monroe, Zachary Taylor, Franklin Pierce and Chester A. Arthur. Mr. Hisgen is peculiar in that he is the first instance of a candidate with a name of doubtful pronunciation. Even the hundred thousand citizens who intend to vote for him don't know whether the "g" in his name is "hard," "soft" or "silent," and possibly they will never know, unless Mr. Hearst, through his multitude of newspapers sees fit to enlighten them. There's nothing in a name, and even Mr. Bryan has frequently failed to "conjure" with it; he would probably fail as utterly as if he were a Montgomery or a Fitzherbert St. Clair. Is not the name that wins elections? It's the votes. Twenty years hence, "Old Subscribers" and "Politicians" will write to their favorite newspapers inquiring who were the unsuccessful candidates in the Presidential election of 1908? For such is fate.—News Letter.

RENO AS A MECCA FOR DIVORCE.

To Southern divorce cases recently filed in Reno has served to bring Nevada into the limelight as being the easiest State in the union in which to get a divorce. Since the suit was filed investigation discloses the fact that Reno is the Mecca of dissatisfied couples and that its lawyers are doing a very thriving business in this line, because, as one of them confided to an impatient client, "Nevada beats South Dakota to a standstill in this game. You can get a divorce here while you are waiting for the next train out of town." This remark is a bit of exaggeration, but discloses the situation. The easy freedom of the divorce laws there is illustrated practically in the Southern case. Neither Mr. or Mrs. Sothern is a resident of the State. Mrs. Sothern is a resident of the State. Mrs. Sothern, the plaintiff, has never been in the State, except to go straight through it on an express train. Her divorce papers were made out in New York and mailed to a Reno firm of attorneys, who are putting the complaint through the lively grinding divorce mill. They alone know what the complaint is, for it is sealed, and under the Nevada laws the case can be managed so that the public may never know any of the details except the judgment. This point was covered adroitly when Mr. Sothern obligingly appeared and accepted personal service. So convenient an interpretation has been put upon the law that Mrs. Sothern herself may get the divorce without appearing on the scene. Till this loophole was discovered by the astute attorneys in the case lawyers generally considered that a six months' residence was necessary. Mrs. Corey, wife of the millionaire steel magnate, served that probation at the time she set him free to marry Mabel Gilman, the actress. This recent very broad rendering of the law is likely to shove Sioux Falls into the background and make Reno the dumping ground of the nation's "easy divorce" hunters.—Town Talk.

"QUIET" DIVORCE CASES UNCOVERED.

Among the score or more of "quiet" suits that have been uncovered in Reno since the Sothern suit attracted attention to the thriving divorce colony is the Morton case. The fair plaintiff heard that Nevada was an easy place to get a divorce and came on from New York to procure one. Her husband is living in England, and has never visited the United States, at least so it is claimed. The plaintiff has not lived six months in the State, and yet her case is on the court docket. The chances are that the conservative element in Nevada will endeavor to stop all this notoriety at the next meeting of the legislature. Sioux Falls, South Dakota, has awakened to the evil effects of easy divorce laws, and will make a strenuous effort this winter to elevate the bars. Financially the divorce business has been a windfall for the little town, as the divorce colony averages about $60 a year, and most of them are good spenders from the big Eastern cities. The money annually left behind by the colonists is figured at a half million dollars at best, and it is scattered everywhere, from the hotels to the bootblacks. The lawyers, of course, get the first whack at the loot. The main streets are lined with their names, but competition is now very tame among the smaller firms. The big lawyers have connection with law firms in the East, the latter drum up the business and send on the clients with the proper credentials. Under this system advertisements "guaranteeing easy and quick divorces" are published freely in the Eastern metropolitan papers and business is hunted as actively as in any commercial pursuit.—Town Talk.

WHY NOT REPAIR CITY HALL?

Now we are in the month of August, 1908. A great earthquake and fire occurred on the 18th of April, 1906. Two years and three months have elapsed since the City Hall became an unsightly ruin. It is more than ever unsightly today. Every tourist who sees this evidence of municipal incompetency asks in surprise, "What kind of officials are in control of our government?" Supervisor Giannani remarked, the other day, at a meeting of the Board of Supervisors, that some one had "slept on the job." Would it not be more correct to say that the whole bunch was fast asleep? Whenever they wake up spasmodically from their trances they engage in little narrow factional politics, and relapse again into their somnolent state. It is about time for somebody representing the afflicted citizens of San Francisco to invoke that recent amendment of the charter, by which unworthy officials may be thrown out of office. Any independent and fair-minded court in the world would convict Mayor Taylor's administration of gross incompetency and disgraceful inactivity by the evidence presented in the form of a photograph of the ruins of the City Hall, twenty-seven months after the great fire. What would be the condition of San Francisco today if our private citizens had imitated the slothful example of their municipal government and "slept on the job" for two years and three months? The coyotes would howl over a waste of bricks and timbers, and San Francisco would be a mere memory instead of a great new city, whose vitality and courage command the approval of all visitors. The confidence and administration which the fine buildings on lower Market street excite in critical strangers are destroyed when they ride up town and see a weatherbeaten ruin exemplifying the merits of our city government.—Wasp.

HOW SOCIETY WAS SHOCKED.

Although several weeks have elapsed since Miss Emily Wilson gave society such a severe shock by eloping with Mr. Orville C. Pratt, the real story of the most sensational runaway match of the decade is only just coming to light. Whenever members of the smart set gather on the plazas of fashionable hotels or at the bridge tables, the Wilson-Pratt affair is the topic of conversation. It seems that, for some reason, Mrs. Wilson entertained no very great liking for the good-looking young lawyer who is now her son-in-law, and did not encourage his presence in the house. In fact, she forbade his attentions to her daughter. When Miss Wilson wanted to see her lover she was compelled to meet him at the homes of mutual friends. It seems that this obstruction to Cupid caused the runaway match. The lovers intended to have the marriage celebrated before Miss Wilson's departure for Europe with her mother. Their intention was to keep secret the fact that the wedding had taken place until the return of Miss Wilson from Europe. To a degree, the couple were able to carry out their plans, but by an odd chance the secret of the wedding leaked out.

Miss Wilson, it appears, informed her mother that she was going for a week's visit to her friends, the Josselyns, at their country place near Woodside. As the two families are most intimate, Mrs. Wilson readily gave her consent, and Miss Emily departed ostensibly for the Josselyns, but really to meet Mr. Pratt at Martinez. There the marriage occurred. The newly wedded couple enjoyed a week's brief honeymoon, and then the bride returned to town to resume her preparations for her European trip. So far it was well. By a lucky chance neither Mrs. Wilson nor her daughter, Mrs. George Cadwalader, happened to meet any of the Misses Josselyn. In which event the disappearance of Miss Wilson must have come out.

Mother and daughter finally left for New York and Europe and the secret marriage was still undiscovered. But to muzzle the press is next to an impossibility. In a small Contra Costa weekly newspaper a line of type recorded amongst the names of farmers and dairymaids who had obtained marriage licenses, those of O. C. Pratt and Emily Wilson. By some chance, Mrs. Horace Blanchard Chase, while reclining in a hammock at her delightful country place, "Stag's Leap" in Napa county, scanned this list of rural matrimonial licensees. Needless to say, the names of her two friends in fashionable San Francisco arrested her attention. Cupid was tripped up. Mrs. Chase cut out the scrap of tell-tale paper and mailed it, with a note of interrogatory, to Mrs. Cadwalader. And so the cat bundled out of the bag. Once the secret was told it took as many wings as a dragon-they did in the winter time, the only difference being that most of these pleasures were enjoyed at fresco. So the summer did furnish a change or air, if not of enjoyment.

But this summer has a personality all its own. No one cares for elaborate balls, and as yet no hostess has come forward to suggest one. It is time to informally dance down the moonlight hours at a house party on Lake Tahoe, like the Kongs recently gave at Idlewood; or to twinkle, silenched to the song of the stars as at the dance Miss Jennie Crocker gave last year, and for which she had an open air pavilion especially constructed. But the formal indoor ball seems like a left-over bargain from the winter and only fit for the rummage sale. Formal teas are also tabs this season in the small suburbs. People foregather at dinner time, here, there or anywhere, for everyone swings the latch-key when the Oolong is passed, but no one has yet insulted the dear old summer with a regulation tea. Bridge, of course, plays morning, noon or night, at whatever time or place enough enthusiasts happen to gather to make a table, but as I said before, the table is usually placed out on the veranda or under a shady tree, so no one takes many chances on violating the ordinance for so many cubic feet of ozone every day.

People with nearby country homes are finding out the value of a few weeks of a genuine "woods" time, and almost every one has already gone or is planning to go somewhere into the Sierras for a genuine change from the life in a smartly appointed country home somewhere between San Rafael and San Jose. There are some very good horseback riders in the smart set, and any number of girls have taken trips into the mountains this year. Miss Elizabeth Livermore is a good rider, and has several good months at Montesol at the disposal of her guests Mrs. Walter Martin, Miss Jennie Crocker and Miss Virginia Jolliffe are great mountain riders and have planned several trips before the summer fits by. Mrs. Fred Kroll is one of the most enthusiastic riders at Tahoe. Her serious fall several years ago did not make the horse permanently unpopular with her, and she has achieved some of the steepest rides in the lakeshore.—Town Talk.

BUNGALOW IN HIGH FAVOR.

The bungalow is bounding into favor. From Southern California it has been working northward until it is asserting itself even in the cities of Oregon and Washington, not for summer use simply, but for permanent residence. In its true character it is built all on one floor, with a central hall and an encircling veranda to qualify the heat. It combines the advantages of the flat with those of the house, but no bungalow enthusiast—and the number is rapidly growing—would be content with the taste and means of the room with which the flat dweller has to put up.

The bungalow, even in its lowest form, is all ancient history. Mr. George Cadwalader made a hasty trip to Martinez, recognized the handwriting of his sister-in-law on the records of the County Clerk's office, and wired to Mrs. Wilson, who was just about to start for New York. Next came the newspaper reports of the affair, and secretly stared in blank astonishment, and it is still in a trance.—Wasp.

THE HOTELING- MILLER INCIDENT.

Not being in the confidence of Mr. Henry Miller, I do not know whether he appreciates the free advertising which he contrived to get out of the chumming of temper provoked by Mr. Richard Hotelling, but as he is a manager as well as an actor I am inclined to the opinion that the box-office sheet will render him sensible of a debt of gratitude to the man who stirred his choler. For even actors of the keenest artistic sensibilities are susceptible to those emotions which are most grateful to the sordid flim-flam and the thrifty captain of industry. From the standpoint of the press agent, Mr. Miller is deserving of the highest commendation for the artistry which he has exhibited in promoting publicity through the simple expedient of renting a mountain out of a male-kill. As for Mr. Hotelling, being aware of his amiable temperament and his freedom from rancor, I am convinced that he presumed on the strength of acquaintance with Mr. Miller, to affect sentiments which he did not feel, not supposing that they would be taken seriously. But the joke is on Hotelling. It was a case of not knowing it was loaded. But Mr. Hotelling should have known, being as he is in touch with affairs theatrical. Mr. Miller, though an artist, is not to be trifled with. A few years ago when, after being highly praised by a few provincial critics for a performance of "Camille" which he and Miss Angelin gave on the road, he ventured into New York, and there the critics told him the truth. And the article Mr. Miller flew into as great a rage as he did when he read Hotelling's letter. And he denounced the critics from the stage. And the critics laughed at him.—Town Talk.

DIED AS MARTYR TO THE STATE.

Mrs. Frederiek Marrott met her death in an automobile accident in the Santa Cruz mountains, while on a pleasure trip with her husband, the publisher of the News Letter. Mrs. Marrott died as a martyr to the State. The negligent county officials who had accepted a mud road built on shrub and discarded fence rails, are directly responsible for the passing of this sweet soul into eternity. If it is possible that this awful sacrifice, made to incompetence and negligence, shall insure safety to the thousands who travel the roads of California, Mrs. Marrott will have earned the undying and grateful remembrance of her fellow citizens. Mrs. Marrott was an intense lover of nature and a woman of splendid literary attainment, and in her travels with her husband she found her greatest pleasures. The ideal conditions that surrounded these two lovers, for they had never dropped into the humdrum of existence, has seldom been equaled in this life.

She lived in the perfection of marital felicity, and at the time that her existence was so cruelly, wantonly and suddenly terminated, after a life of frugality and thrift, her loving husband had presented her with a beautiful home. Here she reigned in happiness and perfect love, and in the blossoming thereof was taken away. Her friends in legion extend their sympathies to the father and little daughter, bereft of so sweet a friend and counselor.

DON YORBA'S DIVORCE CASE.

It makes housekeeping easier and more economical. It is pleasanter for the host and pleasanter for the guests. It lends itself to the simple life or more ambitious designs. It can be built of logs or stone, and in its easily arranged setting neither looks cheap, tawdry nor forbidding. Perhaps for the largest demands, a "foot-tax" of eighty rooms for instance, the plan would not gracefully lend itself, but the great majority are content with a fifth of that accommodation, and that is artistically attained in a bungalow.—The Argonaut.

BETRAYED BY A POSTAL CARD.

Several of the garages of this city have established an elaborate system whereby the owner of a machine may feel comfortably sure that his auto is not out without his permission. At one new garage a report is mailed every day telling the hour and number of times the macaule leaves and enters the building, and as a consequence a well-known young matron played the leading role in a farce comedy. Flitted to the opposite role was a young woman who has recently been visiting San Francisco. As the dainty little ingenue, trailing an almost imperceptible odor of gasoline behind her she has made a great hit with a select audience. The matron recently gave a luncheon in honor of the fair young visitor at a country club and after the festivities she generously provided one of her machines for the guest of honor and several other young women. The day after the luncheon she received a card from one of the garages notifying her that that particular machine had turned in at 2 o'clock in the morning. "Ah!" said the matron, or words to that effect, as she buckled on her gun shoes and slipped to the telephone to unravel the mystery. Each occupant of the car insisted that she had in turn been deposited at her own door, leaving the distinguished young visitor to be taken to her hotel at about 6 o'clock in the afternoon. Considering the matter settled, the owner summoned the chauffeur and put him on the carpet. The chauffeur was haughtily dismissed from her service—and then hired over again after he managed to cram an explanation into an intermission of silence. He had not taken the young lady directly to her hotel, but instead, at her order had driven her down the avenue on a shopping tour which had lasted until the dinner hour. Then he was told to wait outside the hotel while she dressed for her dinner, and in due time the young lady and her mother appeared and were driven to a fashionable residence where a dinner dance was in progress. He was then commissioned to attend to several engagements for them, as they were leaving town the next day, and at midnight he reported again, and when they were ready he drove them to their hotel. Naturally he thought his employer had put the machine at their disposal. The chauffeur's story proved true in every detail, and a lively chuckle was enjoyed by those who had shared the automobile with the young woman who commandeered it for her own purposes in such a royal fashion. Of course the story did not long restrict itself to that particular set, for an episode so saturated with gasoline is too highly explosive to keep in close confinement.—Town Talk.

GLORIA NEVADA IS NEW SINGER.

A young society girl who has been studying music abroad writes me that she met Mine Nevada the other day and was introduced to her daughter Gloria, who under the name of Gloria Nevada won a great deal of praise at her debut in the music world. She sang her maiden performance at the Compton Theater in Rome, at the end of last season and has been engaged to sing there all of next winter. Gloria is very pretty girl not unlike her mother when she was a student at Mills College, building castles in Spain to be paid for by her golden notes. She has made a great success in the college town, and that almost any woman you meet over there can extol the most obscure passages in "The King and the Queen." I have heard that there was a woman in Berkeley who thought that Puccini's "La Bohème" was a masterpiece, but the singer evidently originated them until the golden notes were exhausted, for I understand that Emma Nevada's financial affairs now depend upon her daughter's talents.—News Letter.

D. O. MILLS IN COURT COSTUME.

A London correspondent writes me quite glowingly of the appearance of D. O. Mills in English court costume. Mr. Mills, as everybody in San Francisco knows, is the father of Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, the United States Ambassador to England, editor of the New York Tribune, and in his younger days assistant to that really great American editor and red political, Mr. Mills, as something of a hero, and describes the details and impressiveness of "court costume." The entourage was done at a dinner given in honor of Mr. Mills by the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, and we are informed that Mr. Mills is a handsome man in his ordinary, plain citizen's clothes, "looked very well, indeed." The court dress consists of black velvet necktie, a velvet swallow-tailed coat, lace ruffles, a lace cravat, black silk stockings and buckled shoes. Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, presented her father with a fine pair of old buckles for his shoes, and was so pleased with his dignified appearance in his court costume that she had several photographs taken of him. These court suits cost him $250 upwards. Many entertainments were arranged in Mr. Mills' honor, but, to his credit, it is said that he was forced to pay the fuses made over a week of it. At the royal garden party at Windsor he chatted for a quarter of an hour with Her Majesty, Queen Alexandra. The American who goes to one of these English court functions as a plain citizen comes away with much more respect than an intrepid Britisher. The English are a very level headed people. You seldom hear of a distinguished Briton rigging himself up as a Japanese to meet the Mikado, or as a Chinaman to take tea with a Peking princeeling, or as a Turk to meet the nobility of Constantinople. If the guests don't like him in his truly British attire, it is their misfortune and they have to take the most of it. Wasp.

SHE KNEW HER MIND.

Mrs. Frank Freyer, who was beautiful Mrs. Englehardt Critcher, not only relates the celebrated incident of the unpaid for auto bought for the honeymoon trip, but tells how young Shorb belonged to the army of unemployed and expressed no desire to labor for his daily bread. Cruel as all, he made her go back and live with her father, and because no other course was open to her, she was forced to follow the caustic advice of her infantile spouse. Just a while ago it was said that the young husband intended to bring the divorce complaint, with his wife's desertion as the charge. Mrs. Shorb has those well-known Olympic Club members, William Humphrey and Eugene Lent, to present her side of the case.

Taking it all in all, it is a pretty kettle of fish for the Superior Court to stir up, and will be a rich find for the newspaper reporters should the Judge decide to try the case with open doors. The social prominence of the boy bridegroom's family, the social activity of his bride, ten years his senior, the sensational episodes of the honeymoon, and the separation in twenty-three days, will make a most detectable narrative.

It looks very much as if young Don Yorba Bernardo has been out-generalized by his bride. He has been quoted as saying a good deal about his intentions to sue for divorce and to sue his father-in-law for alienating his bride's affections. All at once he finds himself sued. Military authorities unite in declaring that it is always desirable to take the initiative, if possible, and instead of waiting for the attack, open fire on the enemy. Don Yorba is under fire all right.—Wasp.

own fault. It will be remembered by those who have heard the story that when Jerryd first read "Sordello" he was convalescing from a serious illness. Sentence after sentence brought no consecutive thought, and presently Jerryd was seized with a great fear. Thrusting the book into the hands of his wife he eagerly asked her what she thought of it. He watched her intently as she read, and finally when she exclaimed: "I don't understand what this man means," Jerryd uttered a cry of relief and exultation. "Thank God," he said. "I am not insane." As William Lyon Phelps of Yale has been expounding Browning at the Berkeley Summer School, and as he could be heard at two bits a throw, as they say on the campus, it is reasonable to surmise that fresh impetus has been given to culture in the college town, and that almost any woman you meet over there can extol the most obscure passages in "The King and the Queen."

Latest Disclosure Regarding Spreckels Purity Crusade.

If anything were needed to disclose the real character of the efforts to "purify" San Francisco, it is the latest disclosure as to the activities of the gumshoe department.

A proceeding in contempt is on before Judge Lawlor. The men against whom charges have been laid are W. J. Burns, John G. Lawler and R. C. Schindler. All of these are of the new force of detectives that the San Francisco Board of Supervisors recently made provision for at the request of District Attorney Langdon. Burns is the kingpin, and is to receive $625 a month. These extra-judicial policemen, it was proclaimed by Langdon, are necessary in the work of convicting grafters. What they have been caught at is tampering with veniremen.

To ascertain the views and feelings of men who had been summoned to serve on the panel for the next Ruef trial, Burns drafted a bogus petition for the dismissal of all graft trials, and placed it in the hands of subordinates to present to veniremen for signature. The sleuth idea was that in the conversation likely to ensue the real sentiments of the veniremen would likely be disclosed. It was a great success apparently. Detectives turned in reports on a number who were interviewed, which reports were duly read at the hearing yesterday, though they were not intended for such promulgation.

The policy of presenting a petition to dismiss graft prosecution was varied, according to the testimony of Detective Schindler, by canvassing for the Lincoln-Roosevelt League. Schindler admitted representing that he was a member of the league, and that he was canvassing for membership, as the league needed the support of the people. He testified that he also sought to ascertain the views of those whom he accosted on the connection of Rudolph Spreckels with the Lincoln-Roosevelt League and the graft prosecution.

Here we have it all connected up. The graft prosecution, the Lincoln-Roosevelt League and Rudolph Spreckels. They are synonymous. The three are one, and the one is the whole business. And the facts are spread before the people so that none may longer doubt, through the agency of a disreputable tribe of detectives enjoying official status and which Spreckels is responsible for.

Under pressure brought by Rudolph Spreckels, the buffedoed District Attorney and the complaisant Supervisors foisted these merry miscreants upon the city as public officials. It was set out by in great particularity that their services were absolutely necessary in the mighty Spreckels effort to purify others; but here they turn up as criminal themselves—as tamperers with veniremen; and, as a side line, they act as drummers for a Spreckels political organization. How far from infamy is this whole business?

What is now to happen will be watched with the keenest interest. In a normal community the persons directly responsible would be clapped in jail for contempt and those indirectly responsible would be discredited for all time. That may not happen in this instance, but what must be recognized is that the great purifier who has pursued the policy of sacrificing everybody not instantly willing to sing him hosannas stands disclosed, as countenancing, if not directly promoting, a sort of scoundrelism that has not yet been proved even against Ruef.

Opening Mr. Bryan's Campaign.

The campaign has set in for the Democratic candidate. A feature of its beginning is that two eminent Eastern members of the party who are to take part were in California when the curtain went up. Judge Alton B. Parker, the candidate of four years ago, delivered a speech in Los Angeles, and Hermann Ritter, editor of the New York Staats Zeitung, announced himself through interviews in San Francisco. Both declared for Bryan, and consecrated themselves until election day to his cause.

The interest in these events arises from the fact that both campaigners have discounted their influence as promoters of Bryan's candidacy. Judge Parker was the candidate of the anti-Bryan wing of the Democracy four years ago. If the Bryan wing did not protest, its acquiescence was silent and sullen. In the campaign that followed Bryan rendered no earnest support. All he did evidenced his half-heartedness, and even his contempt; and after Parker was snowed under in one of the greatest political blizzards of history, Bryan maintained an I-told-you-so attitude, which was not relaxed even down to convention time of this year. When Parker went to Denver with the avowed purpose of presenting before the national convention eulogistic resolutions upon ex-President Grover Cleveland, he was checked by Bryan, and his resolutions emasculated, which he submitted to without protest. Under all the circumstances, it is not seen how Parker is to be very effective on the stump for Bryan.

Editor Ritter made a heralded journey to Lincoln, Nebraska, for the purpose of informing the Peerless One that he hadn't a chance of election, and that he would do the patriotic thing by stepping aside for Johnson of Minnesota. Precisely what happened at the interview cannot be generally known, but as Bryan is not at all enamored of the Minnesota man, and as he has never given a sign of such lack of confidence in himself as the New Yorker manifested, it is pretty safe to conclude that the "message" was not very hospitably received. How the German journalist was made to feel that his duty lay in supporting the Nebraskan instead of making effort to get him out of the race is not plain; but it is certain that his influence as a campaigner has been greatly weakened. Steadfast people are not impressed with the spectacle of a man announcing himself as going on a crusade against a candidate for the Presidency, and, in the first interview to that end, going over to that candidate's camp and becoming one of his warriors.

In subdued manner, with lowly mein, as those who had been chastened, it might be proper for these gentlemen to take part in the campaign for their master later on, when the din serves to distract from personalities; but to open it, and sound the keynote, attracts such attention that the intended effect is sure to be lost.

That the story told on the witness stand by Evelyn Thaw regarding her relations with Stanford White was largely manufactured or colored and exaggerated out of all semblance of truth is attested by its inherent improbability and the conduct of the witness for a long period subsequent to the outrages she claimed to have suffered at White's hands; but nothing is to be gained for justice and good morals by exploiting at this late day the statements of Hattie Forsythe, the chorus girl chum of the Thaw woman, who now says

I'LL FIGHT TO A FINISH, SAYS SUFFRAGETTE

"One thing above all others my mother impressed upon us—always to fight for the weak." And that is what Miss Annie Kenney, London suffragette seems to have been doing since she was old enough to earn a shilling. Moreover, this frail, delicate woman, who has said that if she could not change some of England's laws affecting women she will at least die in the attempt, knows how to fight. She is only twenty seven years of age and when she was fifteen became a brief winner by working in an Oldham mill as a half timer. At Miss Annie Kenney the age of fifteen when the girls grew dissatisfied with their wages, it was little Avril who obtained for them their just rights. Four times has she been arrested and sent to prison. "I am going to deal with this case severely," said the magistrate who sent her to Holloway for six weeks.

If he had wished to send me forth more determined than ever to fight on to the finish he could not have chosen a better way to do it," says Miss Kenney, whose hatred of man-made laws has been increased by what she saw during her imprisonment.

Waitress

DENVER—Louise Anderson, a waitress at the Y M C A, narrowly escaped death and even serious injury at Nineteenth and Ogden streets when she jumped from a car in mid-air at a speed estimated at close to twenty-five miles an hour. She struck the ground with great force and was rendered unconscious. For a time it was thought she had been killed, but she recovered consciousness and an examination failed to reveal any more serious injuries than a few bruises about the face and hands.

Miss Anderson's surprise created consternation among the passengers in the car who thought surely she would be killed. Women screamed and the conductor hurriedly escaped injury in his haste to leave the car to go to the aid of this woman. With the assistance of Patrolman Butchell who lives near by and into the home of John L. Snack, proprietor of the

PROVED REGULAR BUZZ SAW AT LOVE-MAKING

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—Meeting for the first time at 4 o'clock and being married at 5 o'clock is the record for rapid fire matel making set by Charles MacGregor and Estelle Myers Snack both of Baltimore.

MacGregor is a wealthy real estate dealer. He is thirty and the bride twenty-two. Miss Snack had been spending her vacation at Atlantic City. She was returning home via Philadelphia. As she stood in the waiting room of the Broad street station she dropped her purse and picked it up.

When they discovered their honor were in the same city the way was easy. At 4:10 the conversation turned to the discussion of marriage. At 4:14 MacGregor was able to propose with the consent of the bride and one minute later he had been accepted.

The difficulty then was to arrange the marriage. As MacGregor pondered upon the difficulty he was aroused by a heavy slap on the back. Behind him was the Rev. David T. Neely pastor of the Asbury Street Presbyterian church in Baltimore, his own church. The minister agreed to perform the ceremony and the party went to the home of John J. Robinson, an intimate friend of the groom, where the ceremony was performed at 5:35 o'clock.

Moonstruck.

The moon shone in my eyes the other night
And filled my brain with fancies—like dreams—
(The moon is full and tickle so it seems
And made of me, no doubt a foolish night.)

I thought I loved you. Thought for full an hour
That Paradise—my own—was in your grasp
You can recall the ardor of the clasp
My hand gave yours—and all the subtle power

Of thrilling glances—lips that softly met
The words half spoken trembling on my tongue
'Twas all the spell of that white radiance flung
From Luna's face. The jad! I see her yet

But now the sun is over me—in my brain
Returning reason sits upon her throne
The world I see is not for us alone—
Not yours and mine—and so the spell is vain

And in the sky the moon may hide her face
And count me missing from her votive shrine
I see today that earth is only mine
When some rich maid has fled your vacant place

FAITH IN HER HUSBAND

(By ROSALINE)

LONDON—The feminine sex is created with a large supply of hope and enthusiasm which is rarely prepared to accept the world as it is. There is a desire to make some slight effort at least to reform it. For instance every woman has a touching faith in certain latent qualities existing in her husband (or any other male belonging) which she is sure only need developing no matter how opposed these special qualities may be to his obvious characteristics. Even if he is a shy man and hides himself in his shell as resolutely as any hermit crab in his habitat of society he is a good husband. However, however he may be induced into the most perfect hell, he can always be induced to see the necessity of exertion and to take his little hints. She humors him as a nurse does a refractory patient. "Now, dear do take this medicine, it will do you good." They will go to失望 if you don't." So she drugs him with love and dainty party fun. But if he is educational, suppose that both would be happier if he remained at home, convinced all the while it is very good for him even if like a child compelled to do dull drudgery the brunt of his son's sundry vis faces over his lot on gasoline company plant at 319 North Franklin street so frightened Mr. George St. L. who was sitting at a child's stool next door that she faint and dropped her two year old son Charles from the window.

A canvas wing broke the child's fall and he was rescued uninjured by a neighbor.

Mr. St. L. was taken to the Tribune man hospital where he soon recovered. John Dry, 24 years old, 1741 South Twelfth street, and Henry Miller of 318 Spring street were among those injured in the explosion. They were taken to the Hospital and survived. The ice plant is damaged but slightly.

The conductor was hurt, when the young woman leaped from the car.

I thought surely she would be killed. I thought she would be killed. I stopped because we had not made a stop for over two blocks and the car was running at high speed. It all occurred so suddenly there was no chance to prevent it. She got out of her seat when the car crossed Ogden street and I supposed she wanted to get off at Downing. We had just about reached the intersection between the two streets when she jumped.

Fair Alice Has Fad For Many Buttons

Mrs. Nicholas Longworth has developed a great fad for buttons and has dozens of them on her gown. On evening gowns are beautiful buckles set with gems and some of them hand painted. On many of her street gowns she has several kinds of buttons, so much in love with them is she and these buttons cost money, too.

Women do not shop in Cuba even among the many stores in Havana. Servants go to market and our own department store is represented by peddlers who travel along the country roads.

Life is simple in the villages. A few clothes last many a year. The notion pedler and the shoe pedler seem to supply all the needs of the average Cuban woman. In the land of mantillas a milliner would starve to death. The shoe men carries little stock for the two smallest sizes of shoes made in the United States—one and one and a half—fit the whole feminine population.

Even the Cuban ladies wear a size that averages four and a half and often with shoes as small as three. Her sad appeal did quickly melt the stone heart of Bob. His conscience stung him promptly said With tender accent. "Squab."

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Aug. 8—William Garlick Thompson created a sensation that blocked the boardwalk for twenty minutes. William is 16 years old and better known as "Buddy" and that is a small mile crowd such a ruction among the crowd of promenaders with due to themselves over which Buddy had no control.

The excitement was dealt with by another garment of William Garlick Thompson better known as "Buddy" in the young man his not reaching the stars of knickerbockers.

It is likely that no further explanation will be necessary.

"Buddy" had been with his father in a boardwalk shop but wandered forth while the parent was busy at the counter and started on a side trip of his own. It was during this trip that the catastrophe occurred. Somewhere in the maze of fluffy garments under "Buddy's" short skirt a safety pin suddenly loosened the hold which his mother had intended it to keep and in a flash the miniature gentleman was in trouble.

VITAL GARMENT DROPS.

A most vital garment dropped around "Buddy's" feet. Buddy was tripped up with great celerity and arose in tears. A hundred sympathizing women halted and blushed as they saw "Buddy's" predicament. More than a hundred male promenaders followed suit. Others from both ways on the walk saw the sudden halt in the procession and ran with all speed to see the cause of the excitement.

"Won't somebody please fix me up?" wailed the golden-haired Buddy.

Half a dozen women blushingly started forward to perform the necessary operation that would again place "Buddy" in position to continue his adventures but the nerve of each and every one failed as she spied the concerned glances on men's faces.

"Please fix me up; my mamma isn't here," whimpered the juvenile adventurer, but in the face of the battery of male eyes the plea went unheeded for a moment. Then the heroine appeared. She was a pretty little blonde, but she made up in nerve what she lacked in size.

To the pleading of a girl companion she paid no heed. Down on her knees she went and with trembling fingers attempted to "fix up" the weeping youngster.

"That ain't the way mamma does it," declared the tearful "Buddy," and in a flash the plucky girl had turned the now smilng tot over her knee in approved fashion.

There was a flash of lace-trimmed bikini, a quick snap of a safety-pin and the incident was closed, so far as the milling crowd was concerned, and they proceeded on the afternoon stroll.

Buddy's father appeared just as the operation was properly finished and stumbled out his thanks to the now blushing girl who completed her labors with a kiss invited by the happy "Buddy," who stuck out his lips for the camera.

PREPARING FOR LONG FIGHT

Strike Situation in the North Remains Same--Watchman Is Assaulted--Contest on to Bitter End.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 8.—Fifty more non-union workmen were taken to the Winnipeg shops of the Canadian Pacific railway this morning and put to work. The company has perfected arrangements for housing and feeding 2000 men in its yards.

A special policeman on duty in the yards was brutally assaulted by an unidentified man with a club last night. A number of Winnipeg strikers have been rebuked by their executive officers for publicly jibing at a workman who had refused to join the strike. They had carried a banner bearing the word "scab" and had followed the man home.

The company has received many applications from new men for work in the shops and the officers claim the strike will result in nothing more serious than temporary inconvenience. The men on the other hand, profess to be confident of winning. It is accepted as a fact in business circles that it will be a fight to a finish.

The company is maintaining a special force of policemen and the men are picketing the system at all important points. Many officials and clerks in the service are doing some of the work of the strikers.

One of the men who walked out Thursday stated that the foremen were placed between two fires and were simply being forced to quit work. They received an ultimatum warning them of the consequence of their refusing to strike and the company has insisted that they take positions as foremen over non-union labor at various points along the line and this they refused to do.

FOREMEN AT WORK.

Foremen working under an existing agreement that men earning $125 per month could not be forced out, are still in their places. All have been informed that in the future there would be no promotions from the ranks and that all appointments would be made from technical schools and that foremen who went out would not be taken back.

The company is relying principally on a large contingent of British machinists and toolmakers are expected here at the end of next week. A few more men were put at work today.

The Immigration Commission has accepted the resignation and has indicated its preference for Professor Mills, who will be tendered the position.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

FINE DESSERT FOR SUNDAY

Lehnhardt, the Candy Man, Will Make Hawaiian Cream for Sunday Patrons.

"I expect to create quite a lot of interest with my new dessert tomorrow," said E. Lehnhardt, the Broadway candy man today. "It is quite a novelty and rather different from anything I've tried before. It is made chiefly of cream and Hawaiian pineapples and will be wonderfully delicious every Sunday, generally combining three flavors—ice, brick. This Hawaiian cream will be combined with Peach, Water Ice, and Strawberry ice cream, which will make a very delicious brick. This Hawaiian cream has a flavor different from the ordinary pineapple ice, as the cream used is very heavy. The flavor is obtained by the use of Hawaiian fruits, the pineapples predominating."

Lehnhardt charges 80¢ a brick and delivers them in time for your Sunday dinner. One brick is enough for eight people. They come roundly packed, and will keep for hours.

"He also sells the plain Hawaiian cream at 75¢ a quart, but advises the brick tomorrow as the combination of these three flavors is particularly fine.

If you'll telephone Oakland 497 or Home phone A 3497 tonight or before 8 a.m. tomorrow your order will be delivered in time. This is a good way to relieve yourself of the worry of getting something new for Sunday's des-

The Girl Who Bared Her Life on the Witness Stand and the Actress Who Declares That That Harrowing Recital of Wrong and Betrayal Was Untrue

YOUNG WIFE OF PRISONER ACCUSED OF PERJURY BY ONE-TIME FRIEND

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 8.—The order from the bankrupt, cast of H. K. Thaw, from the barbershop, came to Mrs. Evelyn Thaw, who is the only one who can make today. According to the bankrupt laws Thaw will be required to attend a meeting of his creditors before the referee.

Roger O'Meara, the Pittsburgh detective, who last night was appointed receiver for the bankrupt, informed some time today with Thaw's consent.

That radical changes in the payment of Thaw's debts will be made is evident from Roger O'Meara's statement today that all creditors "will have to show me their pence."

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—That Evelyn Nesbit's story of how Stanford White induced her wife, as told on the witness stand in the defense of Harry K. Thaw, was a tale concocted by one of her husband's lawyers is the remarkable statement of Hattie Forsythe, one of New York's prettiest chorus girls and a former friend of Mrs. Thaw.

Mrs. Forsythe spoke yesterday by telephone. She knew both White and Thaw well. Her acquaintance with Mrs. Thaw goes back to the days when Evelyn was a mere slip of a girl in the chorus of the "Wild Rose" company. She was with Evelyn and Thaw when they taught the Parisians a few tricks in the memorable summer in Paris when Thaw proposed marriage to Evelyn.

It was in her apartment that Thaw and Evelyn took refuge upon their return to America when hotel turned their doors on them and it was she, too, who, heavily veiled, impersonated Evelyn and led the reporters a merry dance through Central Park and back again when they tried to interview the little show girl and find out whether she was really married to the millionaire. She was really married to the millionaire.

ONLY TO SAVE HUSBAND.

"Evelyn is a dear little thing," Miss Forsythe said last night, "but she is an awful story teller. There isn't a word of truth in that tale she told about Stanford White on the witness stand. She simply traduced her benefactor to save him."

"Harry is a fine fellow and a good spender, but he isn't crazy. He is just the victim of his own colossal egotism. They may say what they please about Stanford White, but he was the gentlest, the kindest, the most thoughtful and considerate man that ever lived. I never heard a man or woman who knew him personally say a hard word against him."

In these words Miss Hattie Forsythe summed up her opinion of the characters of the principal actors in the Thaw-White tragedy. It was the first time since Harry Thaw shot Stanford White to death on the Madison Square Roof Garden that any one competent to speak of all the motives that led up to that stupendous human drama has broken silence and so her estimate of her one-time friends and intimate associates interests of a psychological study.

TEMPTATION WAS TERRIBLE.

"Please understand," said Miss Forsythe, "that I am not saying anything against Evelyn. On the contrary, I like her very much and if she did as she did—well, the temptation was terrible. She had herself to save and her husband to save, and what was the poor girl to do?"

"Besides, I don't believe she ever made up that awful story about Stanford White. I believe one of the lawyers fixed it all up and when he told her it was the only way to save Harry's life and Hattie Forsythe, Chorus Girl, Declares Mrs. Thaw Traded Her Benefactor to Save Husband.

She never dreamed of any harm coming to White through her, or I am sure she would have bitten her tongue out before she would have sacrificed him.

"I don't believe that Harry is crazy; he is just erratic, but there are thousands of other men just as crazy as he is and if they put them all in the asylum goodness knows where they would find room enough."

BLAMES THAW'S CONCEIT.

"And self-conceited! That's Harry Thaw's trouble. He has an idea that he is a little tin god, and that nobody would dare to touch him. That's why he has attempted to kill both her and her infant child with a saw."

Upon his arrival at the hospital Miller stated that his arrest is the result of a scheme on the part of his wife to rid herself of him. He declared that she had secured possession of all the property formerly owned by him, on the threat of leaving their home, and that since he had over his savings, she has denied him admittance to the house and is trying to drive him away from her. He declared that his only wife was his child, whom he declared was badly mistreated by her mother.

Further investigation develops that Miller is now facing a charge of battery brought against him some days ago in Judge Geary's court by Mrs. Miller. He is therefore compelled under oath to appear as to his sanity on Monday morning and later in the week appear in the Police Court and answer the charges made by his wife.

He declared that his only wife was his child, whom he declared was his child, whom he declared was badly mistreated by her mother.

Miller is now facing a charge of battery brought against him some days ago in Judge Geary's court by Mrs. Miller. He is therefore compelled under oath to appear as to his sanity on Monday morning and later in the week appear in the Police Court and answer the charges made by his wife.

Charles Miller, a Melrose carpenter, is held in the insane ward of the Receiving Hospital on complaint of his wife, Mrs. Bertha Miller, who charges that he has attempted to kill both her and her infant child with a saw.

Upon his arrival at the hospital Miller stated that his arrest is the result of a scheme on the part of his wife to rid herself of him. He declared that she had secured possession of all the property formerly owned by him, on the threat of leaving their home, and that since he had over his savings, she has denied him admittance to the house and is trying to drive him away from her. He declared that his only wife was his child, whom he declared was his child, whom he declared was badly mistreated by her mother.

THE MEDDLER

MISS IDA KLINGER

THE tide of travel is setting homeward now, and it is wonderful indeed to see the way the vacation habit has seized upon our people. Great crowds of people are pouring homewards, and it is a picture worth while which shows them on their way. "Good times" are written all over them and a rested look on each face bears witness to the success of the vacation. All the way from Ukiah great crowds of people pour from the hills—all the way to Tiburon. There are the many springs amid the hills through which the Northwestern Pacific passes; and the many camps amid the hills where the simple life is the only life possible.

Over two thousand people came up the Santa Cruz trains on Monday, and the trains from the Sierras brought shooting and hunting parties, and camping parties, called to town only by the fact that school days were here.

One could linger long amid these wonderful California hills, and if dull one should linger anywhere in the neighborhood one could just look at him carelessly and murmur the old Spanish "Manana." The old Spaniards told the secret of this wonderful California, they knew if they waited till tomorrow care would never catch up with them—and it never did.

The fascination of the hills lures one, and it is an effort to return to the everyday world of work.

We love our homes here by the bay, but many of us are planning little picturesque country homes in the mountains, little homes that we can share with our friends, homes on which the word welcome is written over the doorway in letters of light."

A celebrated architect in New York came to California recently to study the "Bungalows," and New York is wildly enthusiastic over the result. It is said we have evolved the ideal little country home, and what is known as the "California bungalow" is being copied extensively in the mountains of the Middle West and New England States.

PICTURESQUE SECTION OF STATE.

The region from Santa Cruz to Boulder Creek is one of the most picturesque and fascinating to be found in all the beautiful Santa Cruz region, a little branch railroad takes one from Felton, through Brookdale and Ben Lomond, to Boulder Creek, which is the end of the line. In all three places there are little settlements now, a country store of course, where one may buy anything, and "the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker" come to one's door every morning so that housekeeping is made easy. One expects a simple menage in the country. It is the big forests and the wonderful atmosphere which does the rest, in making for the contentment which gives one the ideal vacation home.

One of the notable places at Boulder Creek is the card party, where invited to the card party were Mrs. E. A. Heron, Mrs. Lillian Everts, Mrs. J. H. Mathews, Mrs. Arthur Holland, Mrs. John Boyne, the Misses Ferlin, Mrs. J. W. McClymonds, Mrs. Dudley Kinsell, Mrs. Lyman, Mrs. Lemuel Adams, Mrs. Booth, Mrs. A. D. Thompson, Mrs. Oscar Luning, Miss Anita Thomson, Mrs. D. R. Roe, Mrs. John Hampton, Mrs. Arthur Adams, Mrs. A. K. Munson, Mrs. Chase, Mrs. Bert S. Hubbard, Mrs. Edward Engs, and Mrs. Albert Long.

There were over fifty guests and the game of the afternoon was five hundred, the prize being won by Mrs. Dudley Kinsell.

The Capwells returned to town this week, after having spent many weeks of the summer at Fernwood, their country home in the mountains.

Captain and Mrs. J. H. Mathews who are spending the summer at Brookdale with Mrs. Arthur Holland, are in town for a few days.

Mrs. Albert Long is to entertain some time this summer Mrs. William H. Richardson, who is visiting her father, Mr. Stephen Gage, at the family home on Harrison street.

Mrs. Lillian Everts, who has been the guest of Mrs. Lyman at the latter's home at Brookdale, returned to town last week.

Mrs. Lemuel Adams and her children have been spending the entire summer in the Santa Cruz mountains, and have passed most of the time at Brookdale.

CROWDS FLOCK TO SEASIDE.

Santa Cruz has scored more than the usual degree of gaiety this season, and crowds have flocked to the beach on every occasion.

The Goodfellow cottage has been full of guests all summer, and Mrs. Goodfellow has a way of seeing that her guests have a rare good time. Among them have been Mr. and Mrs. Angus, and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Goodfellow, and their little son. Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Luning have been at the Sea Beach Hotel, having motored to Santa Cruz.

They have had with them Anita Thompson, and all of them have greatly enjoyed the fascinating motor trips to the mountains near Santa Cruz.

They have all had an ideal holiday trip, and they are returning to town this week.

At Santa Cruz has also been James D. Phelan, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Martin and Miss Hagar.

Mrs. Martin is always a notable figure at any place she may visit. She is extremely tall, and she adds to her stature by the very highest of French heels. She is of the very decided Brunette type, with black eyes and hair, and makes a picture most striking wherever she may happen to be.

SIMPLE LIFE IN THE COUNTRY.

One thing Californians have learned thoroughly, and that is to plan their summer along very simple lines—the simpler the better. Life cannot be too complex in country homes. The domestic service problem is bad enough in the city, but it is a great deal worse in the country. There are few maids to lift the housekeeping burden. And one charming feature of all these many little bungalows is the ease with which they are passed along to others. The key is just given to some friends and away they go, and take up life for a few days amid the most restful surroundings. All the world finds its country home now-a-days. Time was care-taker of the neighborhood left in charge. Nowadays the appointments are all so simple, the little home so livable, its value the hills, the trees, the big out-of-door world, that one gladly lends it all to one's neighbor.

This is specially true of the cottage of the Wallace Alexanders, and of the bungalow of the W. S. Chickering at Los Gatos. The Edgar Bishop also have their cottage at Ben Lomond full of friends, whether they are there or not.

INSPIRATION AND CLIMATE.

There is inspiration in the California climate, and all through our mountains one comes across little homes where well known writers have won out to fame. California has done more than her share in contributing to the literary, musical and dramatic advancement of the country. And all over the land are known the names of Gertrude Atherton, George Sterling, Maxine Elliott, Tetrazzini, Juliet Wilbur Tompkins, and indeed one might go on indefinitely, with a list of well-known names.

Gertrude Atherton has been in amagno and she has been the guest of the Christies, the central figure of the great passion play.

George Sterling lives for the most part at Carmel by the sea, and this summer his mother, Mrs. Sterling, and his sister, Avis Sterling, have been at Pine Inn, near his home. George Sterling's latest poem has surprised everyone, even those who have always known that in him burned the true fire of poetry.

In the August number of the Cosmopolitan he has a blank verse poem, "Tasso and Leonora," which is true poetry, full of dignity, and of the greatest beauty.

All the many reviews of the poem are quoting his description of a beautiful woman, as one of the most exquisite bits of imagery of modern times. "For thy haunting face Thrills with the rose of unremembered dawns." Thine eyes hold azure of a younger sea, The depths of the incomparable hair, Twilight in which we parted, and thy voice

The grief and music of forgotten lives."

It is truly one of the great poems of modern times, and it is good to know that the great poet is not only a Californian, but that the poetic inspiration of his young life was given him in our own Berkeley hills.

Juliet Wilbur Tompkins is traveling in Italy, her last year's novel "Dr. Ellen," having reached its fourth edition. Many old friends here remember Bobbie Tompkins, and her sister, Juliet, the young girls of the old family home of Southern Farm. This same farm has seen many episodes since the quiet days of the Tompkins regime, for it is the Dunsmuir lived, and Edna Wallace Hopper, and it is now the country home of the Hollmans. Juliet Tompkins received good literary training on the journalistic staff of one of our large dailies, and she won recognition in the wider field of the short story in New York. Her first novel was "Doctor Ellen," which has succeeded wonderfully. One is very sorry that she has not been equally successful in her domestic affairs, for her marriage to Emory Pottle proved a great failure. He is also very successful writer, and is now in Paris, engaged on a new novel.

Maxine Elliott represented the American stage at the presentation of Elliot Glyn's play, "Three Weeks," and one hears she was one of the most beautiful of the many attractive women present. Old friends here remember Maxine Elliott as a little girl in her quiet East Oakland home. She was always an attractive child, but no one knew of the dramatic possibilities which have brought her recognition on the stage, both in England and America.

Apropos of things dramatic, it might be said that "Three Weeks" represented the smartest of smart gatherings, by far the most fashionable audience seen in London this summer.

PASS SUMMER AT GLEN ELLEN HOME.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Watson and their charming little son Donald, are at their picturesque home at Glen Ellen, where they spend nearly all of each summer, returning to town when the autumn is well advanced. The latch string is always out in the delightful Glen Ellen home for the many friends of the Watsons, and of Mrs. Mauvais. Lulette Mauvais is at the Landers home, near San Jose, where she is the guest of Eleanor Landers.

MISS TARPEY AT ALTA VISTA.

Miss Dolly Tarpey is still at Alta Vista, where she is the guest of Mrs. Henry Butters and of Mrs. R. Augustus Bray.

EQUAL SUFFRAGE ENTERTAINMENT.

One of the most interesting receptions of the year is planned for the afternoon of August 18, when the ladies of the Equal Suffrage League of Oakland will be the hostesses.

The "at home" will be given in honor of Mrs. Pease of Utah, and of Mrs.

Churchill of Colorado, and will be given at the Unitarian Church par-on next Thursday afternoon from 2 until 5 o'clock.

Mrs. Adna A. Denison is chairman of the reception committee, and a large receiving party will assist her during the hours of the "at home."

The whole

problem of equal suffrage is a world wide one now. America goes its wain a peaceful monotony, but among the old world civilizations the problem is a burning one, and the main one before the people of England. It might be mentioned in passing that ever

MISS HORTON BACK FROM EUROPE.

Mrs. James Moffitt is returning from Europe this week, where she has been for the past year. Mrs. Moffitt is an exceptionally fine student, speaking

French delightfully, and she has known

how to plan an European itinerary, interesting and delightful. Mrs. Moff-but on this far Western coast Miss Horton began her work in modest ashion, nearly twenty-five years ago, bringing with her Eastern ideals, and those experiments which she had been successfully tried in the larger Atlantic centers. And the school grew and flourished as a young bair, filling a great place for those parents who knew what they wanted for their children, and who realized how slowly the public school machinery must always move, especially in the line of reform.

And the little school "grew"—new rooms were added—with much wisdom was selected the best that was developed in educational progress.

Physical culture was early recognized as a great factor in child development, and daily exercises were planned for the children.

One of the finest Swedish-Lloyd workrooms on the coast has long been a part of the Horton school equipment, and its working laboratory ranks with that of any private school in the State.

The Horton school is very dear to many homes in the State, because of all the graduates who have gone from its halls, many of the girls are now in homes of their own, many of the men are graduates of the University of California, and are now doing their share of the world's work.

The school has for many years now been accredited at Stanford, at the University of California, and at the leading Eastern women's colleges.

Miss Horton has always been wise in absolutely forbidding all secret societies in the Horton school. No girl has ever had a sad heart through being "left out," and no boy has felt himself superior to his neighbors by virtue of the magic power of "frat."

The course of study at the Horton school is built upon fine, strong lines, and it is possible to consider the individuality of the child, and to do that which is truly best for his all around development.

The Horton school will open on Monday, and its many friends will wish for its twenty-fifth year an added success.

A quarter of a century is a long time, and assures a thorough foundation, many things have been proven in the long years, and a successful past is the best assurance of a brilliant future.

IS GUEST OF MISS ORR.

Mrs. Arthur Crist, formerly Kitty Kutz, has been the guest this week of Edna Orr, at the latter's home in Berkeley.

Mrs. Crist is going to Auburn this week, where she will be the guest of Mrs. Arnold, formerly Clara Laws.

USEFUL VACATION PLAYGROUND.

Of all the many activities of the vacation days, none have been more far-reaching in usefulness than the vacation playground. One hopes that the Ebell and Home Clubs will lend their influence another year to a cause so deserving of support.

Playgrounds for the children are the great need of modern times, and Mrs. C. H. Chamberlain and her assistants from the Oakland Club have accomplished a great work this year. It is just one district in New York 5000 children applied for admission to the vacation school. The children of the richer people are cared for in summer, but the children of the poor are turned on the streets to play, often with disastrous results.

It is the simple duty of the school system to take care of these children in the long, trying days of the summer.

Through the influence mainly of women's clubs, the playground movement is rapidly spreading in America, and it is expected that when the play congress meets in New York City on September 8, there will be more than 100 cities with well organized playgrounds represented.

During Mrs. Humphrey Ward's recent visit to New York she was the guest of honor at a banquet given at the Waldorf-Astoria by the playground association of America. The banquet was in recognition of her services in providing playgrounds and vacation schools for the poor of London.

At a recent convention in New York City, California made a good showing—and a report was made of Oakland, which had set aside $500,000 for its parks and playgrounds.

Among those associated in the playground work are President Roosevelt; Miss Jane Addams, the Duchess of Marlborough; Mrs. Clarence Mackay; Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt Jr.; Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs and Mrs. O. H. Belmont.

The work in Oakland has been led by members of the Oakland home, and has been directed by Mrs. C. H. Chamberlain and Mrs. Francis Gray, and their assistants.

Tahoe offers much of interest to mountain lovers in the late summer. Dr. and Mrs. Chamberlain have been at Tahoe, having had an unusually enjoyable trip in their White steamer.

countryside have been invited to "A Night in Fairyland," and among the many guests included from Oakland are the Sanborns, the Clays, Miss Molli Connor, Miss Anita Thomson, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Stulp, Miss Evelyn Hussey, Miss Gertrude Russell, Miss Inez Estudillo. Many well known San Franciscans people are on the list of invited guests, and the affair promises to be one of the most elaborately planned of any gathering given in the county for years.

MISS HENRY BECOMES BRIDE.

A wedding in San Jose of unusual interest to many Oakland people was that of Miss Bessie Henry of San Jose and Mr. Charles Grelle of Portland. It was a home wedding, the details of which were planned with such care that it was one of the elaborate social events of the mid-summer.

The Henry home in San Jose was very beautiful, showing everywhere superb arrangements of gorgeous sweet peas, and the bride was a lovely picture, in an extremely handsome wedding gown of white satin, elaborately embroidered in silver.

There were nearly a hundred wedding guests, and after the ceremony there was an interesting reception, followed by a beautiful and most elaborate wedding supper.

The latter was under the special direction of Hallahan—Mary Hallahan personally planning it, and going to San Jose for the occasion. It was one of the most successful wedding banquets that San Jose has seen in many months.

Indeed, Hallahan this year is called upon to go far afield—and Stockton, Sacramento and San Jose are easily within the sphere of its usefulness.

The bride's bouquet was caught by Miss Rita Dinsmore, the very attractive sister of Paul Dinsmore, who has scheduled to take place in San Francisco this year.

Preparations are going busily forward for one of the largest receptions of the year—the reception which will open the annual meeting of the National Collegiate Alumnae, which is to be held at the Hotel Carlton on the evening of August 31.

In the receiving party will be Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, Mrs. David Starr Jordan, Mrs. Benjamin Ide Wheeler, Mrs. Warren Cheney and Miss Peckham, the latter to deliver the address of welcome.

There is to be a Stanford day, a Berkeley day, trips to the Lick Observatory, to the Greek Theater, to Del Monte, and luncheons and dinners innumerable. Our September weather is perfect, and this annual meeting bids fair to be the most unique and successful in the history of the association.

MRS. GROSS GIVES BRIDGE PARTY.

A delightful afternoon bridge varied this week the monotony of our mid-summer days. Mrs. George Gross entertained at her attractive home on Boulevard Terrace in honor of her sister, Mrs. William H. Richardson.

Thursday was the seventh anniversary of Mrs. Richardson's wedding and the reunion of old friends was in honor of this interesting date—many of the guests of the bridge party having been guests also at the wedding of Miss Gage and Mr. Richardson.

Mrs. George Gross is very stunning, but she is also one of the very brightest hostesses in our city, most optimistic and cheerful, and always saying something so original that people are interested and happy around her.

Mrs. Gross' home was exceedingly attractive, great jars of splendid gladioli striking a fine note of color.

The hostess was gowned in brown crepe de chine, the gown made on extremely effective lines, and beautifully trimmed in lace. Mrs. Gross was assisted in receiving her guests by Mrs. Joseph Lorain Pease and Mrs. William H. Richardson. Mrs. Pease was most attractively gowned in pink, and Mrs. Richardson wore a very dainty gown of blue mosseline, trimmed in lace.

Every one is so glad to see Mrs. Richardson again, to welcome her, that her home-coming has been a most happy one.

The card game was most interesting, since so many of the guests were good bridge players. There was a prize for each table, and they were won by Mrs. Montell Taylor, Mrs. Montell Taylor, Mrs. Churchill Taylor, Miss Clarisse Louise and Miss Carrie Nicholson.

Among the very effective costumes of the afternoon were those worn by Mrs. Chase, formerly Miss Knowles, Mrs. Paul Dinsmore, Miss Anita Thomson, Mrs. Larkey, Mrs. Henry Rosenfeld, Miss Belle Nicholson and Miss Mona Crelling.

The bridge afternoon represented a most delightful gathering of congenial friends, who greatly enjoyed the afternoon planned for them by one of the happiest hostesses of the year.

ENGAGEMENT OF MISS HUSH.

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Florence Hush and Mr. Charles Bentley came as a great surprise to the many friends of the Hushes on this side of the bay. The Hushes have been in mourning and consequently have not gone out much, so their friends have not met Mr. Bentley, even though the engagement is now of some months duration.

One hears many things most complimentary to Mr. Bentley, who is a young business man of assured standing in San Francisco. He has the characteristics which make for success along many lines, the fine type of young man, which the Californian with his wide possibilities so often develops.

Many of us have known and loved Florence Hush, since she was a very little girl indeed. And she has grown up to realize all the early promise of childhood days.

Mrs. Hush has always planned admirably for the education of her children, and few girls have been educated along better or broader lines.

Florence and Jean Hush went for years to Spence Seminary and later New York added a broader environment.

Miss Florence Hush ranks among the finest pianists on the coast, and she is most modest concerning this great musical gift. One knows that Mrs. Wells, with her genius for the violin could never in all the world find an accompanist like her sister, Florence.

But perhaps the loveliest thing one could say of this dear bride-elect is that she has been an ideal daughter in her home, sweet and loving and true in every way. She is so sincere herself, that there have come to her many true friendships, and the recently announced engagement brings most hearty good wishes to the Hushes. No date has yet been set for the wedding of Mr. Bentley and Miss Hush, but it will probably take place this coming winter, and the young people will make their home in San Francisco.

Every one is so glad to see Mrs. Richardson again, to welcome her, that her home-coming has been a most happy one.

The card game was most interesting, since so many of the guests were good bridge players. There was a prize for each table, and they were won by Mrs. Montell Taylor, Mrs. Montell Taylor, Mrs. Churchill Taylor, Miss Clarisse Louise and Miss Carrie Nicholson.

CUPID'S ACTIVITY.

The important events of the week were the unexpected marriage of Miss Claire Chabot and Leon Bocquerez, which took place at the Chabot country home, Villa Remi, in Napa county, and the announced engagement of Miss Florence Woods Hush and Charles Bent.

The Chickering, with Miss Grimes and Miss Henshaw, are to return in the near future from Tahoe, and are planning to spend the month of August in Mendocino county at the Henshaw country place there.

Mr. Palmanteer, with his daughters, returned this week from Tahoe, where they spent most of the summer.

Only the two families were present and the wedding party was made up of the six little nephews and nieces of the bride. They are all attractive children and formed a charming background for the pretty scene.

The bride was lovely in her white frock and she and the groom will spend their honeymoon traveling in Europe. Mrs. Bocquerez is one of the cleverest young women in Oakland. Like her older sisters, she has been most carefully brought up, above, as the French say. She is an excellent linguist, speaking French as well as she does English, and she is well read and expresses herself on political economic topics with ease and fluency.

RETURNING FROM THE MOUNTAINS.

Now that the August days are here people are beginning to return from mountains and seaside. Among those who returned this week were Mrs. Henry Rosenfeld and Miss Carrie Nicholson, who returned from Boulder Creek and Mrs. Wickham Havens and her little daughter, who returned from the East where they have been spending a month with the Frank Havens at Bar Harbor.

The summer in the mountains of California has been extremely hot, and there has not been such a summer for heat in the region of Shasta for many years. The Ohlone and the Willows have been passing some time in the new club house built last year on the McCloud river, but the weather there has been excruciatingly hot.

However, the McCloud river country is very beautiful and the thermometer falls several degrees when taken to the river levels.

Mr. Bunker is associated with a mining company at Prescott and it is there that the young couple will make their home.

Miss Rose accompanied by Miss Mollie Martin have devoted the two years in which they have been abroad to the study of the piano. Miss Rose preferred the Paris studios to those of Berlin.

From Fruita: E. N. Van Fossen

PRESIDENT LAUDED IN GREETING

Prime Minister at Auckland Proposes Welcome Note for Fleet and Praises U. S. in It.

AUCKLAND, Aug. 8.—The book which has been printed by the government for presentation to the officers of the American battleship fleet as a souvenir of their visit here contains the following greeting, written by the prime minister, Lester G. Ward:

"No visit of foreign warships was ever so welcome as is yours today. In receiving the fleet a sense of kinship stirs our hearts, for we feel that the greatest nation of the West has come to visit us, this vessel being the visible embodiment of its might, majesty and dominion. President Roosevelt, in every act and word of his life work, reflects and voices our national ethics and aspirations. The name Roosevelt in New Zealand stands for national righteousness and is cherished, honored and revered; the fleet stands for peace, justice and freedom. These are the thoughts and feelings that are stirring our hearts today."

ASKS FOR PILOTS.

In a wireless message received here this morning Admiral Sperry, commander in chief of the American fleet, requests that pilots join the four flagships of the fleet on their arrival at the harbor entrance on Sunday morning to facilitate the disposition of the ships at their anchorages.

CANNOT HOLD MATCH.

Although a rifle match between Americans of Americans and the Dominion volunteers had been arranged as part of the week's entertainment, the ministry cannot allow an armed party to land from the American warships. The premier, on being urged to modify the restrictions so that the match might be held, replied that the imperial law prevents the landing of an armed party, the regulation being very stringent.

OAKLAND MANAGEMENT IS STRENGTHENING TEAM WITH MANY NEW PLAYERS

CHICAGO FIGHTER PROVES GOOD HITTER AND BOXER

Managers of Thomas and Ketchel Fail to Select Referee for Coming Battle; Will Decide Monday Night.

BY EDDIE SMITH.

PACKET MCFARLAND the stocky fighter from Chicago and claimant for championship honors in the light-weight class made short work last night of Phil Brock the sturdy Ohio boxer who has been showing well at Los Angeles of late.

Packey, in a message to THE TRIBUNE yesterday said that he expected trouble in having the Old boy and judging by the reports from the ring side he accepted the task of defeating his opponent as easily as he expected.

In the first round of the contest McFarland took matters easy evidently sizing his man up well before taking a chance.

In the second he buckled down to business and with a well-aimed left to the jaw he put Brock down for count, and although the game Mr. Brock staggered to his feet and rushed at the stocky fighter in a vain attempt to win, he was at last beaten within reasonable distance of five rounds.

The bout lasted seven rounds with Brock taking a terrible beating and trying with every ounce of his strength to land a punch that might turn the tide of battle but it was a useless effort and after about a minute of the seventh round Referee Charline Dayton stopped the contest and awarded the decision to the Chicago fighter.

McFARLAND A HITTER

Brock in his game attempt to land a hay-maker hit low several times but as he was tired and groggy the referee overlooked the unintentional infringement of the rules.

In almost every round the bell acted as a lifeline to the Old fighter and several times it was expected that he would be knocked out.

The contest of last night sets at rest the charge that McFarland cannot hit for while he did not knock his man out with one wallop he accomplished something that others have failed at by forcing the referee to stop the bout to save his man from unnecessary beating and had the contest continue he would have put his man away.

McFarland will now proceed immediately to San Francisco where he will try to get the manager of the Gans-Dolan fight in a championship contest. McFarland was a top-heavy favorite in the betting but it was hardly expected he would make such a show of the game Brock whose only chance seemed to be in the mix-ups during the early rounds.

PAUL TO SELECT REFEREE

Frankie McDonald Jack Gleason and Joe O'Connor met last evening for the purpose of selecting a referee for the Thomas-Ketchel contest and after considerable talk it was agreed to put several names in a hat and pick one from his

GOOD CROWD EXPECTED

Jack Gleason said after the meeting that he was also opposed to placing himself on record as objecting to a referee and that he was well satisfied to have the men select the official in this manner suggested.

Gleason also said that for the first time since he handled the contests between Jimmy Britt and Joe Gans that seat or seats were offered him from the box entry.

This fact is taken by the management as an indication of a good house.

Thomas is in training at Shannon's in San Rafael and McDonald says the fans will see a different fighter than the one that opposed Ketchel in the two previous contests in San Francisco.

MUSTAINE IN TRAINING

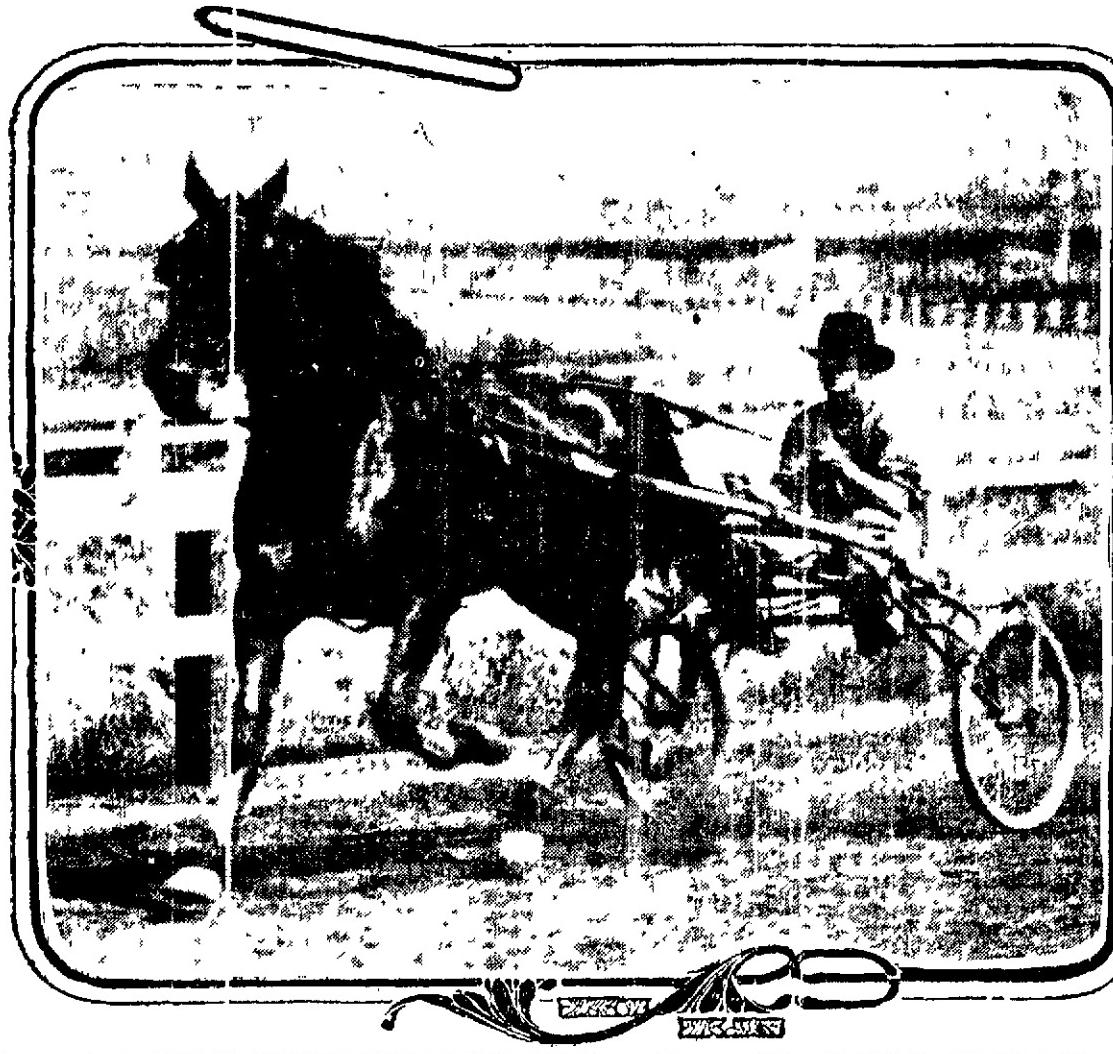

Terry Mustaine the heavy-weight who beat Jack (Twin) Sullivan at Tenopah a short time ago and who is to meet Joe Willis at Roche's Colma Club is in training fine shape. Terry has made a great impression on all who have witnessed his work and his manager Gregory Mitchell says that if he disposes of Willis in good style he will send him over to Kaufman Thomas or Ketchel.

Yesterday Mustaine went through his gymnasium stunts before a large crowd and his boxing with T. Silver and Fred Lunders so impressed those who witnessed it that they left the camp with the intention of placing a bet on his chances.

LOS ANGELES Aug. 8—Los Angeles 10, Oakland 6 Nelson of Oakland made such a bad mess of it in the box today that he was retired at the end of the third inning four runs and five hits being made off him in that inning. Gray was substituted and he managed to shut out the champion for four innings without a hit but in the eighth he fell down and Los Angeles got three runs and four hits. Van Holton made so great a fuss over O'Connel's decision as to whether or not Thomas made a hit that he was sent to the bench.

Los Angeles put Bisselwater in the box—the man who beat Oakland here on July 4 with a score of 14 to 2—and they got but six runs. The good work of Wheeler at third was the feature of the game.

MANAGER M'FARLIN SIGNS WILLIAM ANDERSON, A NEW INFILDER FROM DES MOINES; WILL JOIN TEAM NEXT WEEK

Oakland has added another fast infielder to its team in the person of William Anderson shortstop for the Des Moines Club of the Western League his rise having been purchased for a good sized sum. The new man has been a favorite transgressor and is expected to arrive in time to get into the game with the Athletics here next week against Seals. It is probable that he will fill in for the injured Anderson temporarily as a conditio but will not be available until the plate. He has been a good player and coupled with two others Portland will be three batters to the right. It would be certainly that hard to kill but Molier kept in the game.

The Beavers didn't connect with him again in the second round and he was given a pass.

Then McFarland came along and in only one of the games he slammed out a three bunt to center field fence. It certainly was and Walter had no trouble in third.

It was left to one Nick William to get the first hit of the game of Paul new twister. The Seals first placed a man between third and fourth and Johnson hit a single to the plate. He bunted his passes and Portland twirled three batters to the right. It would be certainly that hard to kill but Molier kept in the game.

FRUIT-GROWERS SEEK RETURN OF PERKINS

Citrus League Endorses Candidacy of Senator for Re-Election on Ground of Great Value to the Citrus and Other Industries of the State.

(FROM LOS ANGELES TIMES) "The Republican national platform is the only one framed by a political party that has a chance of success in November which recognizes the principle of protective tariff a feature in which every fruit and nut grower is vitally interested. Because of this condition the fruit and nut growers of California ought to see to it that California gets into so far as it can demand a recognition from its friends when tariff revision is considered."

These resolutions were adopted by the Citrus Protective League at their meeting in circular to all members of the organization. This body will present the citrus industry before the Ways and Means Committee of Congress on tariff matters at the next session.

In support of these resolutions the league sent a circular letter showing that during the two meetings that the Democrats controlled the United States Congress, every Democratic Senator and Representative from California voted to reduce the tariff on citrus fruits.

The executive committee of the citrus League held a conference with United States Senators Flint and Perkins in the Western Hotel. Flint said one of the first considerations was a proposal for reducing the tariff on citrus fruits which is certain to come with the next session of Congress.

TENDS TO LOWER TARIFF

The Republican platform pledges the Chief Executive to call a special session of Congress for the purpose of amending the present tariff law. Senator Flint said that at the end of three months' consideration there would be a proposal for the attack on the tariff on citrus fruits.

He told the committee that reduced sugar, bacon and citrus fruit are the three articles which bear the highest ad valorem duty under the present tariff. There are at least one other California products that bear a tariff from 15 to 100 per cent. Senator Peleg said that it is only by tact and the example of the citrus industry that the citrus fruit will be allowed a lower tariff.

During a part of that time I went to all the different churches to interest the Senators of the different faiths.

This was one time when Senator Pratt of New York proved a friend to California. When I went to him he said Perkins my wife has an orange grove down somewhere in Florida and she gave this fruit just as well as you do.

We finally had the Jamaican treaty for the three limit and satisfied the city for reciprocity by passing the Cuban treaty (Chavez).

GREAT MEASURES

At the same time the reciprocity treaty was enacted. It caused great uncertainty among the California orange growers who imagined that it would flood the Eastern market with Cuban oranges.

But it has proved to all intents and

She finally had the Jamaican treaty for the three limit and satisfied the city for reciprocity by passing the Cuban treaty (Chavez).

Reciprocity with Cuba went into effect December 27, 1903. By the terms of the treaty it is to continue in force five years from the date of its going into effect and shall continue thereafter from year to year until one year from the date when either party to the treaty gives notice of its termination.

TRADE WITH CUBA

The exports from the United States to Cuba for the year 1903 before the reciprocity treaty went into effect were $1,761,000. For the year 1904 $2,774,500. In 1905 $1,930,600. In 1906 $1,704,680. In 1907 $4,700,74 in increase of nearly twenty eight millions in dollars in our trade with Cuba in ten years.

In 1908 I said our olive oil raisins canned and preserved salmon, dried beans and peas, canned salmon, preserved canned ham, pickled and salted vegetables, wine and salt come into direct competition with the same class of goods imported into Cuba from France, Germany, Spain and other countries.

By the above figures it will be seen that our improved trade relations with Cuba have greatly increased to the benefit of California in providing a market for the above products.

VITALLY INTERESTED

Additional interest is shown in the tariff situation than before. While the product of our coal mines or manufacturers on which the average ad valorem value duty is about 40 per cent there are also on the free list 28 articles that in many instances have sub-divisions which greatly increase this number.

The Wilson Gorman tariff passed in 1909 by six Democratic Representatives in Congress voted for the bill and then the Republicans against it. In 1909 the six Democratic Representatives voted against the Dingley tariff bill and the four Republicans for its passage with a tariff duty on cattle horses and other live stock coming in from Mexico wool hides, walnuts, almonds, olives, olive oil, raisins, Zarzuelas, wine etc.

When the Cuban reciprocity treaty was pending in the Senate I sent a copy of the bill to the Legislature in session in different cities in the state relative to the same and stated that it was the wish of the people of California I should oppose the treaty and policy of the Republican administration. I should defer to their wishes as I did in the ratification of the Free Trade Treaty with Spain relative to the Philippines Islands. The Legislature took no joint action in the matter leaving it to the individual judgment of your representatives in Congress. (Applause.)

APPEAL TO GROWERS.

Atte Senator Perkins had made his explanation about the Cuban reciprocity treaty to the satisfaction of the leaders, then presented him with a copy of the following communication which they are sending to the fruit growers of Southern California:

The Citrus Protective League, the organization which is to represent the citrus industry before the ways and means committee of Congress on tariff matters is very much interested as to our next Congressional delegation. Not but that our delegation is to be chosen for such places might vote to protect the industries of California but we want more from our representatives than their individuality. We are influenced and that influence is measured by their length of service in Congress, their position on committees and their touch and contact with other interests that must be considered in the general proposition of tariff revision.

We believe it is the time for citrus-fruit growers to lay aside their likes and dislikes and give their influence in an effort to return the present Congressional delegation to the House and also to demand that such men are selected for members of the Legislature as will vote for the return of George C. Perkins to the United States Senate.

"Senator Perkins' position on the Senate committee and his length of service is such that no person in California to be named could exceed his usefulness to the protected industries of the State at this time."

THINK CLAUDIANES IS ABOUT TO BE CAUGHT

Nevada Authorities Say Fugitive Is Heavily Armed and Will Fight

RI No. Net Aug 8—Peter Claudianes and his Greek companion are supposed to be living in an old deserted mill in the Humboldt River between Imola and Mill City. They are said to be heavily armed. The companion of Claudianes is supposed to be the other Greek wanted for taking part in the dynamiting of the Gallagher home in Oakland.

In State police will go at once to that locality and if they do not surrender a battle is sure to follow. Last week the officers of Reno traced Claudianes as far as Imola but there they lost all track of him.

POLICE TAKE MAN ON EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE

SAN FRANCISCO Aug 8 Detective Tracy of the harbor police station this morning arrested W. W. Mullens on a charge of felony embezzlement alleged to have been committed in Reno.

Lustreless Eyes

Ill-fitting glasses produce extra strain. Extra strain causes loss of energy, the very life of the eye.

Where this energy-loss continues, the eyes weaken, their brightness diminishes, their astute departs, they become hazy and dull.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

HEALTH IS WORTH SAVING, AND SOME OAKLAND PEOPLE KNOW HOW TO SAVE IT

Many Oakland people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in dinner when ill diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be easily and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is an Oakland citizen's recommendation.

John R. Littin living at 1111 17th Street Oakland, Cal. says: My first experience with Doan's Kidney Pills proved very disastrous. My trouble was from a disordred condition of my kidneys that crept in, causing me to feel unwell as often as once a day. I took Doan's Kidney Pills and they relieved me of my trouble. I now take Doan's Kidney Pills every day and am in full health again.

Cider and Beer

Cider contains more alcohol than good beer.
